

Prisoner Exchange Viewed as Move to Ease Cold War Tensions

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Soviet release of U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers effectively closes the book on one of the most famous spy cases of history. What it means to U.S.-Soviet relations can only be judged by future events.

There is a keen awareness in the highest quarters of government here, however, that Premier Khrushchev has recently appeared to be interested in decreasing Cold War tensions and seeking better avenues of communication with Washington. President Kennedy has been working to the same end. Whether so designed or not, the exchange of Powers and convicted Soviet spy Rudolf Abel seems to fit into that pattern.

Initially, well-informed officials were inclined to regard the exchange as meaning more in the classic tradition of a trade between nations of men who were important to each side. Fitting into this theory is the fact that some moves in connection with the Powers-Abel deal are reported to have started as long ago as last May, a few months after the Kennedy administration took office. Khrushchev's son-in-law, Alexei Adzhubei, lunched here last week with President Kennedy and his press secretary, Pierre Salinger. A day earlier Salinger had met in Paris with Mikhail Kharlamov to talk about exchanging top-level television interviews and otherwise improving communications.

Government officials said that the Adzhubei and Kharlamov conferences did not deal with the Abel-Powers exchange. They did, nevertheless, bear upon a problem which the Kennedy administration considers of extreme importance and from which U.S. interest in increasing Soviet contact is derived. This is the problem of the Soviet-Chinese political conflict that has split the Communist bloc.

Because of this tension between the world's two great Red powers some experts here believe Russia may be impelled to move away from more aggressive international policies and toward an increasing nationalistic concept of its own interest.

So far as U.S. interest in bringing Powers home is concerned, speculation on the possibility of a deal involving the U2 pilot and the famous Col. Abel goes back into the final months of the Dwight D. Eisenhower administration and the weeks immediately following Powers' capture and conviction. Kennedy administration officials, noting that he had been in NORTON, Va. (AP) — "We're just tickled to death," the father of U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers said early today when informed that his son had been released from a Russian prison.

"His mother and I thought it would probably be a much longer time—at least four or five years. And our son thought it would be much longer than that. We didn't have any idea this would happen — and he apparently didn't either," said Oliver Powers, a Norton cobbler.

Not Hard to Wake Up Now
"My wife and I were asleep when the big word came, but it's not very hard to keep awake now," he said.

The parents received first word of their son's release from newsmen and their attorney, Carl McAfee, of Norton.

The attorney told us we'd better be ready to make a trip to meet him somewhere. We don't know where we're going, but we're ready," the father added.

The father said letters had been coming regularly from his son, sentenced to 10 years in prison after his plane was downed during a flight over the Soviet Union in 1960.

In a letter to his parents about a week ago, the pilot said he would be able to write more often — on the 1st, 10th and 20th of the month.

No Idea It Was Coming
One of Powers' sisters, Mrs. W. E. Hileman, said: "Goodness! I just can't believe this — this is what we've been waiting for, but we had no idea it was coming. Goodness! I just wrote a letter to him yesterday, but it won't break my heart if he doesn't get it!"

Mrs. Hileman, awakened at her home in a Washington, D.C., suburb by a newsman's call, said her brother had given no indication in his letters of an early release.

The pilot's other sister, Mrs. Wesley Melvin, Falls Church, Va., said: "My word — I'm so shaky I just can't stop. This is just too good to be true — we hadn't given any thought to anything like this."

Scherer Remains Critical Hit Jagged Rocks In 100-Foot Fall At Wilbur Quarry

A 12-year-old boy, injured Thursday afternoon when he fell from a cliff at an abandoned quarry off Wilbur Avenue, remained in critical condition today at Benedictine Hospital.

Wendell Scherer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Scherer of 40 West O'Reilly Street, suffered multiple injuries to the head and face when he plunged about 100 feet from the cliff to a jagged rock pile.

One of Five on Hike
The boy was one of five on a hiking venture when he fell.

1-4-Inch Snow Covers Area, Few Mishaps

A cold front from Canada moving into Ulster County during the morning brought a halt to the storm which deposited one to four inches of snow in the area over night. It brought with it a sharp drop in the temperature and rapidly improving driving conditions. There was a minimum of accidents, none of the serious, during the snowfall which started about 3 p. m. Friday.

Thruway Lifts Limit

A 35 miles an hour limit, placed on the New York Thruway during the storm was lifted before noon and Thruway headquarters in Albany reported that by 1 p. m. the big highway was clear for its entire length and restrictions against house trailers had been lifted.

There were only a few reports of accidents in the area and no injuries were recorded. There were four minor property damage mishaps on the Thruway. Lake Katrine barracks of the state police said they had received only one report of a property damage accident and the Leeds sub-station in Greene County had only a minor accident in East Durham to report.

Simmons Corners at Saugerties, where Route 9W turns into the village, claimed another tractor-trailer truck victim this morning.

A trailer owner by M & W Milk Transportation Corp., Highland Mills, and operated by Robert Scott Jr., 31, of Newburgh went off the highway at the intersection of Barclay and Burt Streets and struck a tree on the former Washburn estate property now owned by Vincent Ciccone. Acting Chief Sgt. Harold Mills reported.

Truck Driver Uninjured

Acting Chief Mills said the truck was proceeding north on Route 9W and tried to slow down at the intersection in order to make the left turn into Barclay Street, when the brakes failed on the slippery pavement. The tractor failed to negotiate the turn and continued on across the Ciccone property, knocked down a sign and struck a tree. The driver was reported uninjured, police said.

The city of Kingston recorded three or four minor mishaps in the slippery going during the night. Travel was slowed during the night and early today on main arteries into the city.

Robert F. Healey, Retired Kingston Patrolman, Dies

A former city police officer, Robert F. Healey, of 69 West Chester Street, who retired in August 1944 after 30 years and eight months service on the Kingston police force, died today at Benedictine Hospital.

Retired Aug. 31, 1944

Officer Healey was appointed to Kingston Police Department December 29, 1913 and retired on August 31, 1944. Prior to his appointment on the police force, he was employed at the local boatyards.

As a young man, he was widely known as a baseball player and pitched on the old Swamp Angels team and later with the Kingston. Both teams were well known in Kingston baseball history during the early 1900's.

During the many years of his service on the police force, he had made an enviable record for attention to duty and efficiency. He was a member of Kingston Policemen's Benevolent Association and St. Mary's Church. A native of this city, he was a son (Continued on Page 6, Col. 5)

U2 Pilot, Student Released

Abel and Pryor Other Figures in Dramatic Swap

WASHINGTON (AP)—American U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers was freed from a Russian prison and traded dramatically today for master Soviet spy Rudolf Abel in an early morning exchange at the middle of a bridge between East Germany and West Berlin.

Pryor Seized Aug. 25

A second American was also freed. Frederic Leroy Pryor, an American student who had been held by the Communist East Germans since he was arrested in East Berlin Aug. 25. He was liberated shortly before Powers was turned over to U.S. authorities in Berlin and Abel was released to East German officials.

Announcement of the trade was made at the White House at 3:19 a.m. to a corp of newsmen routed out of bed.

President Kennedy had gotten the word only a few minutes before in his White House quarters.

Expected About 1:30

Powers, 32, flew out of Berlin toward Washington, where family members said they expect to see him about 1:30 p.m.

Powers flew from Berlin to Wiesbaden, Germany, changed planes there and took off for Washington. Newsmen and photographers were barred from the base, and there was no official announcement of Powers' route or arrival time.

Powers had been in Russian custody since his high-altitude camera plane was downed on Soviet soil in May 1960. After a spectacular public trial in which Powers pleaded guilty to espionage charges, he was sentenced to 10 years.

The spy plane incident led to the collapse of the Big Four summit meeting in Paris where Soviet Premier Khrushchev wanted at President Dwight D. Eisenhower and called him a "fishy" friend.

Heart Bursting: Wife

"I'm so happy, my heart is bursting," said Powers' wife at Milledgeville, Ga.

She had been awakened to be told of her husband's sudden freedom, as had Powers' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Powers of Norton, Va.

Abel had been described as Russia's chief spy in the United States when he was arrested in Manhattan June 21, 1957.

DeGaulle in Middle But Makes Progress

PARIS (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle, moving swiftly toward peace with the Algerian rebels, was under attack today from the right and the left, both seemingly intent on toppling his government before he can bring it off.

The right-wing Secret Army Organization directs its terrorist campaign to keep Algeria French at the De Gaulle government in hopes that his fall would bring a Paris government more to its liking. If not of its choosing.

Reds Looking Beyond

France's big Communist party sees in the rightist shootings and bombings a tailor-made excuse to rally opposition to the De Gaulle government. The Communists are on record as supporting Algerian independence, and presumably hoped to be expected to help De Gaulle achieve this goal.

But the Communists are obviously looking beyond. They have always wanted De Gaulle out, but had been unable to dent his popular backing among the great majority of Frenchmen.

Now, however, for the first time since De Gaulle came to power in June 1958, the Communist party appears to have aroused serious discontent against government authority. Unable to hurt him with frontal attacks, the Communists are making headway at his flank by using the secret army as an issue.

Public Anger Aroused

Public anger is aroused, both at the rightists for their terrorist activities that daily become more numerous and bolder in France itself, and at the government for its seeming inability to put the rightists down.

Interior Minister Roger Frey charged that the Communists provoked Thursday night's bloody rioting that broke out during a leftist-called demonstration of 10,000 against the secret army. Eight persons were killed; 140 policemen and uncounted num-

State to Check Situation

Supervisors Refer Protest On Paltz Creamery Closing

Threatened closing of the Consumer - Farmer Co-operative, Inc., Creamery on Huguenot Street, New Paltz, which allegedly handles from 400 to 450 cans of local milk a day, was brought to the attention of the Ulster County Board of Supervisors Thursday night by Supervisor George Majestic (D), Gardiner.

He asked that the board pass a resolution condemning the closing, which he said would seriously affect the local economy of the area.

The board referred the matter to the Industrial Development Committee, after Supervisor Molyneux (R), Woodstock, said the matter was already being investigated by Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson, and Chairman McHugh said he had contacted an official of the State Department of Markets and been advised that State Department had its eye on the situation and would investigate further.

Majestic reported a meeting had been held in New Paltz Tuesday at which time the matter had been discussed. He said (Continued on Page 6, Col. 1)

The POWER of FAITH

by Howard Brodie

Washington's faith manifested the freedom of religion in America. Though an Episcopalian, he attended other churches. He once noted: "Went to a Quaker meeting in the forenoon... Went to the Presbyterian meeting... Went to the Roman church, to High Mass."

Lincoln's faith manifested the freedom of the individual: "With charity toward all; with firmness in the right as God gives me to see the right." Though a member of no church, he considered himself "a humble instrument in the hands of our Heavenly Father," and desired that all his "works and acts may be according to his will."

Youth for Christ
Rally Planned
Saturday Night

A Youth for Christ rally will be held tonight at the YWCA in Poughkeepsie starting at 7:30 p. m.

Flight 107, a new concept in Christian films will be shown. This new concept combines the visual impact of the film with a tangible follow through in an action card.

Flight 107 strategically interweaves this action card throughout the story. This card plays an important part in the life of Mel, a Christian teenager. Again and again the card is referred to as Mel goes about pursuing his goal, keeping in mind the seven points listed on the action card. The viewer of the film will become involved in the typical incidents and happenings of Mel as we follow his life through a week of great importance to him. The film culminates after a time of fun and excitement on the mountains. At this time the purpose of the card has been fulfilled and a new life for his friend Ed has been discovered.

Action cards such as the one described in the film will be available for those present who desire something practical for putting their Christianity into action.

In 1846 there was a religious issue in an election campaign. Somebody claimed the candidate for the House of Representatives from Springfield, Ill.—Abraham Lincoln—was "an infidel."

"That I am not a member of any Christian church is true," replied Abe, honestly, "but I have never denied the truth of the Scriptures; and I have never spoken with intentional disrespect of religion in general or of any denomination of Christians in particular."

Lincoln won the election. But three years earlier it had been a different story. He had tried for a Whig party nomination without success, and laid at least part of the blame to religious intolerance.

Was Deeply Religious
Much has been written about Lincoln's religious beliefs, and as his birthday rolls around each year a popular pastime in some quarters is to try to figure out what denomination he belonged to.

His own words, however, provide the best insight regarding his innermost feelings of this deeply religious man.

He himself admitted to being superstitious. In 1841 he wrote to his friend, Joshua F. Speed of Louisville, Ky., "I was always superstitious. I believe God made me one of the instruments for bringing your (wife) and you together, which union I have no doubt he foreordained."

But Lincoln also had a strong reliance on prayer:

Must Trust in God
"I went to my room and got down on my knees in prayer," he said shortly after the battle of Gettysburg. "Never before had I prayed with as much earnestness. I felt that I must put all my trust in Almighty God. . . . I prayed that he would not let the nation perish."

And a profound faith in divine providence:
"If, after endeavoring to do my best in the light which (God) affords me, I find my efforts fail," he wrote in 1862, "I must believe that for some purpose unknown to me he wills it otherwise."

Perhaps the most revealing declaration of Lincoln's religious attitude was summed up in the latter part of his life when he said:

Suggested Inscription
"I have never united myself to any church because I have found difficulty in giving my assent . . . to the long complicated statements of Christian doctrine which characterize their articles of belief."
"When any church will inscribe over its altar, as its sole qualification for membership, the Master's condensed statement of the substance of both law and gospel: 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself' that church will I join with all my heart and with all my soul."

St. James Church
Reports Member,
Budget Increases

The Fourth Quarterly Conference and annual meeting of the St. James Methodist Church was conducted by Kingston District Superintendent, the Rev. George P. Werner with pastoral report was given by the pastor, the Rev. C. P. Hunter.

The following trustees were re-elected for a three year term: Dr. Frederick Snyder, Herbert O. Frost and Clifford G. Smith.

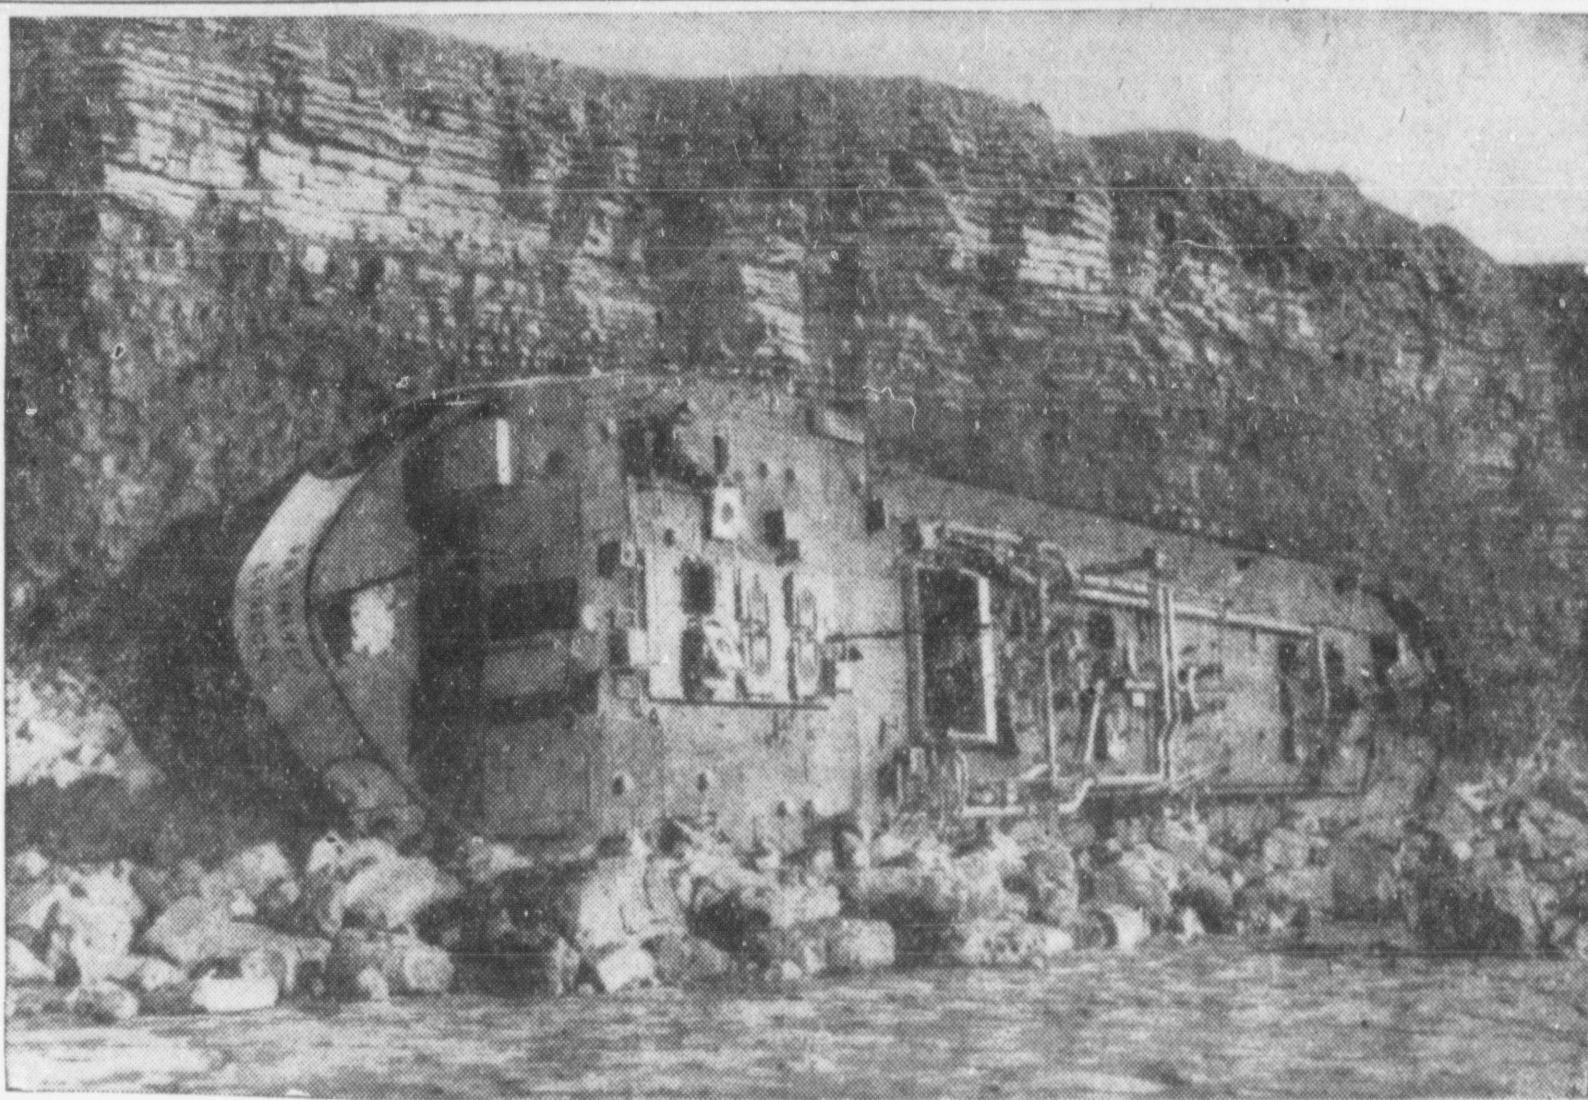

New stewards elected to the board were W. Anderson Carl, Miss Mabel Cook, Mrs. Howard Finger, Clarence Johnson, Mrs. Russell Kenney, James Locke, Percy Russell, Samuel D. Scudder, Donald Simok, Edward Thomas, Rodney Williams and William A. Yates.

The reports were given by the commission on missions, the Woman's Society of Christian Service and the commission on membership and finance. The missionary support of the church has tripled in three years and in May the Rev. Gaspar de Almeida of Luanda, Angola, Africa became the minister abroad for the church. The Woman's Society of Christian Service reported a twenty-five per cent increase in membership and the largest benevolence budget in its history. In addition they have provided for extensive improvements to the parsonage and the church. Commission on stewardship and finance reported a 25 per cent increase in the budget in two years.

Other organizations reporting a general increase in membership and growth were the church school, youth fellowships, Wesleyan Service Guild, Men's Club and The Socialiers — Young Adults.

Proceeding the business meeting the Rev. Mr. Werner made some brief statements concerning his trip behind the Iron Curtain last summer. He said "we ought to guard and be grateful for the freedom which we enjoy in this country. The freedom to worship as we see fit; freedom of the mind and the right to think, and freedom to work and to enjoy some of the comforts of life. These freedoms are denied behind the Iron Curtain and it behooves each of us to cease taking them for granted and to be ever vigilant to protect these priceless possessions."

Wagner Resigns
Club Membership
Over Bias Charge

NEW YORK (AP)—Mayor Robert F. Wagner has resigned from the New York Athletic Club, which has been accused of discrimination against Negroes and Jews as members.

The mayor said he had heard "allegations" about the club's policy.

Wagner, a Roman Catholic and a Yale graduate, said at a news conference at City Hall:

Condon Denies Policy
"I thought the best move would be not to be in a position where, if the allegations were true, I would be a member."

The club's public relations director, John F. X. Condon, said "there is no set policy of any kind whereby a Jew or Negro is not invited to apply" for membership.

Condon said the club's membership of about 9,500 includes some Jews, but he knows of no Negro member.

The mayor's action Friday was similar to that taken in recent months by a number of present and former officials of the federal government who resigned from the Metropolitan Club and the Cosmos Club in Washington following charges of racial discrimination in admitting members.

Mentioned as Candidate
Wagner, who has assumed the role of Democratic state leader following his re-election to a third four-year term last November, is being mentioned by some party leaders as a possible candidate against Republican Gov. Rockefeller who is seeking re-election next fall. Wagner's personal political goal is said to be a seat in the U. S. Senate where his late father, Robert F. Wagner, sponsored the Wagner Labor Relations Act and other important legislation in New Deal days. Wagner ran for the Senate once, and lost.

The club—facing the southern end of Central Park—is a favorite gathering place for politicians, business and professional men. The club sponsors sports teams, and its annual games at Madison Square Garden are one of the nation's biggest indoor track meets.

Nations Need Aid
Of Others: Rocky

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York says "no nation today can defend its freedom or fulfill the needs and aspirations of its own people from within its own borders or through its own resources alone."

In his third and concluding Godkin lecture at Harvard University Friday night, Rockefeller also said:

"No nation today can accelerate growth and industrialization to provide more jobs and higher living standards for a growing population—apart from other nations, their development and their trade."

"Military defense, economic growth, rising living standards, widening opportunities for individual fulfillment—require the joint and cooperative action of many sovereignties."

"The old patterns and formulas of international order have been shattered."

"The United Nations . . . has not been able nor can it be able to shape a new world order."

Rockefeller also said that "the ultimate challenge of communism"

Van Zandt Sees Vicious Pennsy Primary for GOP

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Rep. James Van Zandt of Altoona, seeking the Republican nomination for U. S. Senator has predicted a "vicious" Republican primary in May.

Speaking at a Lincoln Day dinner Friday sponsored by the Fayette County Republican organization, Van Zandt said, "Wounds will be opened and scars left for next Fall. But we Republicans have a golden opportunity to win next Fall if we work together."

Van Zandt also referred to U. S. Sen. Hugh Scott's report of remarks attributed to former President Dwight Eisenhower, which were construed as criticism of Van Zandt and his proposed gubernatorial running mate, Superior Court Judge Robert E. Woodside.

"My confidence was borne out today," Van Zandt said, "when he (Eisenhower) denied issuing a statement against the team of Woodside and Van Zandt."

Coast Solon Hurt
In State Crash

COBLESKILL, N.Y. (AP)—A California congressman was in satisfactory condition in a hospital here today after his automobile struck a tree during a snowstorm.

Rep. Clement W. Miller of Corte Madera, Calif., a Democrat, and his wife were injured Friday night in nearby East Worcester when, State Police said, their car skidded on a slight curve on Route 7.

Miller suffered a concussion, bruises and abrasions. His wife, Katherine, 35, was treated at the hospital and released.

Ironically, another car smashed against the same tree less than three hours later and was found by Trooper G. H. Schulte as he returned to his station at Onondaga from the hospital here.

The driver of the second car was not injured. He was wearing a seat belt, Schulte said.

Scott Welcomes Support in Pa.

OIL CITY, Pa. (AP)—A majority of the Republican leaders of nine northwestern Pennsylvania counties are behind U. S. Sen. Hugh Scott for the party's nomination for governor, and Scott says he is gratified by the endorsement.

"Their action," the senator said Friday, "contributes to the information I am seeking as to whether there exists a general feeling on the part of Pennsylvania county leaders that I should become the party's choice as the gubernatorial candidate."

"As I said before," Scott continued, "I will not make any statement of candidacy at the present time. However, I expect to come to a decision some time next week."

AN ACT OF REMEMBRANCE

History has a way of degenerating. Often we go through the motions of commemorating an occasion, or the birth of a notable man or woman, without troubling to understand or appreciate the reasons for doing so. Such perfunctory remembrance dishonors the person remembered.

So let us not dishonor the memory of Abraham Lincoln, this year, by giving lip service on this 153rd anniversary of his birth. Let us rather, through acts of recollection and imagination, strive to catch the essence of Lincoln's greatness and relate it to our time.

This can be done by remembering the story of his life—his humble birth, struggle for education, rise to strength and influence through the law; his political career that led him to the presidency; his emergence, through the agony of the Civil War, to giant stature among men. Most of all, it can be done by recalling some of the noble phrases through which the genius and insight of Lincoln were revealed.

When one does this, one soon finds that many of his observations had a universal quality that makes them pertinent in our time as they were a century ago. Lincoln's insistence on the worth and dignity of the individual, his faith in the ultimate wisdom of the people, his profound concern that freedom should be preserved and extended, his trust that if we but proceed "with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right," all will be well—these shine through his words. These are beacons to illuminate America's path now as they did in Lincoln's time.

TWO-STATE HANDICAP

A practical politician has just made an amazingly impractical suggestion. Michael H. Prendergast, New York state Democratic chairman, has asked Adlai Stevenson to establish New York residence and run for governor against Rockefeller.

Stevenson lost no time in deciding that he could best serve his country at the United Nations. His decision is wise, and not merely because he would have to wait five years before becoming eligible to run for governor in New York.

Few men whose record was made in one state could thereby gain election in another. There are exceptions. Sam Houston was governor of Tennessee before reaching the same office in Texas. A century ago Gen. James Shields was elected senator from three states—Illinois in 1848, Minnesota in 1862 and Missouri in 1879. But the odds against repeating such a performance must be a million to one.

RADAR DETECTION

Radar detection devices, which are said to be an aid to safe driving, have exactly the opposite effect, according to a Joint Legislative Committee which sponsored a bill making use of the devices illegal.

The bill, which make it an infraction for any motor vehicle on a public highway to be equipped with any device designed to defeat the purpose of police radar equipment, is aimed particularly at a new type of electro-magnetic radar detector. About the size of a small radio, this detector warns with a beeping sound when a car approaches within 1,000 feet of police radar equipment.

The manufacturers claim that device promotes safe driving and warns of excessive speed. Sponsors of the bill to ban it from the roads declare the purpose and partial effect of this device is that motorists can speed and reduce the speed just in time to avoid police detection.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

THE GHOSTS

We are again being scared by ghosts. Again, we are being told that if we are not careful, the ghost of Hitler will emerge to bring misery upon the world. This particular gambit is being used to attack West Germany, to weaken the influence of Adenauer, to justify attacks upon individuals as anti-Semites who are not. It is the old story all over again of stirring up discontent and dissatisfaction to aid Soviet Russia. Many who do it may not be conscious of the game they are playing, just as in earlier years they supported Communists without realizing it.

Another ghost that is being raised in many quarters is Joe McCarthy. For quite a few years, we heard little about McCarthy. The man is dead. He organized no political party. He left behind him no mass force. Whatever he did, history will judge or he may pass away without much notice. But nowadays whenever the issue of Communist activity is raised, the name McCarthy and McCarthyism are injected into the discussion as evidence of prejudice. The ghost of McCarthy serves the Communists well, for innocent persons, not involved in political action, shiver and shake at the thought of McCarthy who at no point of his career justified the attacks now made upon his ghost. What they say is that he destroyed the innocent and when one asks for the name of an innocent, it is never forthcoming.

Then there is John Birch, an innocent martyr in China. John Birch was murdered by the Chinese Communists. He organized no society, he headed no movement; he pronounced no political doctrine. His name was picked up as a symbol of the viciousness of Chinese Communists. There were a number of American missionaries and businessmen who were killed by Chinese Communists, but the name, John Birch, was selected by Robert Welch as the ghost that he would use as the symbol for his movement.

And so the ghost of John Birch, like other ghosts, stalks the land to frighten those who seek a variety of explanations for the events of the day.

Hitler and McCarthy were activists, but John Birch played no role in any agitational movement. A quiet, peaceful man he served his God in his own way. But today in the United States, thousands of persons who never knew John Birch, who never heard of him while he was alive, belong to a society that bears his name and associate him with principles of politics and economics of which he knew nothing when he lived. It is like John Brown's body which ever marches on.

This is the nature of agitational movements. I recall that when Sun Yat-sen was alive he was not a popular political leader. He had no great following. He lived quietly in a house in the French Concession of Shanghai and saw large number of visitors each day; he wrote articles and lectures which became books.

But the moment he died an enormous mausoleum was built in his honor in Nanking. It took a great human effort to climb the steps from the bottom to the top of that mausoleum. When one reached the top, he bowed before Sun's photograph. Then he descended the steps. When he reached the bottom, he had paid his obeisance to a new god. What often irritated me was that so many who walked to the top of those steps had opposed Sun during his lifetime. Now, he was a political ghost whom men worshiped and his name is fought over between the Nationalists and the Communists, each claiming monopolistic ownership.

It was much the same with the mausoleum of Lenin in Moscow. When Lenin was alive he was the leader of a small, hated, but successful revolutionary movement. His ghost stalked the land and today men worship him as though he were a god. When Stalin died, he was given room in the mausoleum and those who came to worship Lenin also worshipped Stalin but time passed and the ghost of Stalin was hurled from the Mausoleum and the ghost of Lenin lies alone. Those who seek to worship, find a god.

Thus men's names are used as ghosts to lead other men into directions that satisfy a lust for association with greatness but bring to them only confusion and hatred.

The Mature Parent

Teen-Agers' Criticism Is Impatience at Time

MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Dear Mrs. Lawrence:
Should children be allowed complete freedom with the refrigerator? Yesterday our older girl, without asking me, used up half a meat loaf I had planned to use for supper, to make sandwiches for some friends she brought home from school. She does this all the time. I can never count on fruit, milk or even eggs because of the way she feeds her friends. But when I try to tell her that my food budget can't stand it, she gets angry and says she can't wait to have a home of her own. She is 15 years old.

ANSWER: What did you say when your daughter told you that she was impatient for a home of her own? Did you say:

"You'll have one before you know it, darling. But in the meantime you're living in this one. And even Daddy who earns our food has to tell me when he's bringing home people to eat in order to be sure I have enough food to give them. When you live in a family, they have to help you plan. So instead of fighting with me, why don't you help me plan ways to feed your friends without breaking the budget?"

I think that you didn't say this because you felt threatened by your daughter's criticism of the way you run your refrigerator.

That was too bad. Because her criticism represented a most natural impatience for the day when she'll be running her own. It had nothing to do with you at all but with forces of growth in your daughter for which you are no more responsible than you are for changes of seasons. Her criticism was not directed at you but at Time—at the years that must be lived through before your daughter can realize her dream of independence and the management of her own refrigerator.

So we are silly to respond to this kind of adolescent criticism defensively.

Nearly always the teen-ager's criticism of the way we do things expresses his hope of doing them differently. It's his way of declaring his intention of leaving us. Instead of saying, "Of course you'll do things in your own way in your own home," we rush to justify the way we budget food, serve meals or organize family holidays and plead for "reasonable" understanding of our problems. It never works.

But once the adolescent is reassured that we are all for that different home of his own, he finds it easier to put up with the restrictions of the one he's living in.

Army Reserve Idea Aims at Elite Group

BY RAY CROMLEY

Washington Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON, (NEA)—Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara and his planners aim to establish an elite Army Reserve corps of about half a million officers and men.

This elite group would clear their personal business and family affairs to be ready for immediate call in a Berlin threat or in a Korean-type limited war. Reservists who could not so order their personal business and family affairs would be dropped from the elite "priority" group and put into low-priority units or reserve pools.

The elite force would include: 203,000 officers and men in six divisions; 32,000 in nine brigades; 155,000 in an assortment of signal, engineer, transportation, tank, chemical, intelligence and other specialized units; 68,000 in units organized to open army bases and train new recruits.

7,400 in "on-site" air defense battalions, mostly Nike anti-aircraft next to cities and other major target areas.

Some 60,000 to 80,000 specialists—non-commissioned officers and other enlisted reserves with particular skills—who would be assigned to Army units and would train with Army units each summer.

A limited pool of general-purpose reserves to otherwise fill the holes in Regular Army and Reserve units in time of emergencies.

The new Reserve plans have been developed by a team under Maj. Gen. Ned D. Moore, head of the Directorate for Reserve Affairs.

DO YOU REMEMBER

By SOPHIE MILLER

Some years ago I was loaned a book called Kingston and Rondout, their representative Business Men and Points of Interest. When this book was published in 1892, some 70 years ago, Kingston's population was 22,000 and as I wrote in a previous column, I do not think we have made 30,000 yet.

At that time, he considered Kingston made up of three villages, that of Kingston City proper, Rondout, some one mile from the Hudson. He did not feel we were situated on any bank of the Hudson, and he mentions Wilbur, as the third. Many of the readers have commented on the 22,000 in Kingston some 70 years ago, and how little it has increased in the 70 years. Still people made money in Kingston, and as one could say millions in Rondout, more so than perhaps in Kingston proper.

There was Dr. D. Kennedy, proprietor and manufacturer of "Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" known in all states of the Union and Canada. His place of business was in Rondout, on Ferry Street near Union Avenue. I see in this 1892 book the mention of John W. Salzman, Sr., Vienna Bakery, choice pies, bread, cake, hot rolls, 5 and 7 Sycamore Street Rondout. They used a saying in their advertisement of "You can't make something out of nothing." This bakery was established in 1860, known as Vienna Bakery, had one floor 20 by 30 feet, completely fitted up, with six employees. It did a wholesale and retail trade. They are now enjoying more than a century of service to the people of Kingston, from the Civil War days. Perhaps the family still have some old photographs of their original establishment.

I also see an item from E. N. Parish, livery, boarding, hack, and sale stable, Union Avenue, Rondout, ranking with the old Army National Guard and the Army Reserve by 30,000—down to 670,000. In addition, 138,000 reservists now having 48 paid drills a year would be cut to 24 paid drills annually.

Though no final decision has been made, the McNamara planners are toying with the idea of eliminating about 10 of the 37 Army National Guard and Army Reserve Divisions.

Supervisors Back N.Y. Korean Bonus

A resolution favoring payment of a state bonus of $250 for overseas and $150 for state-side service by veterans of the Korean war, was adopted Thursday by the Ulster County board of supervisors.

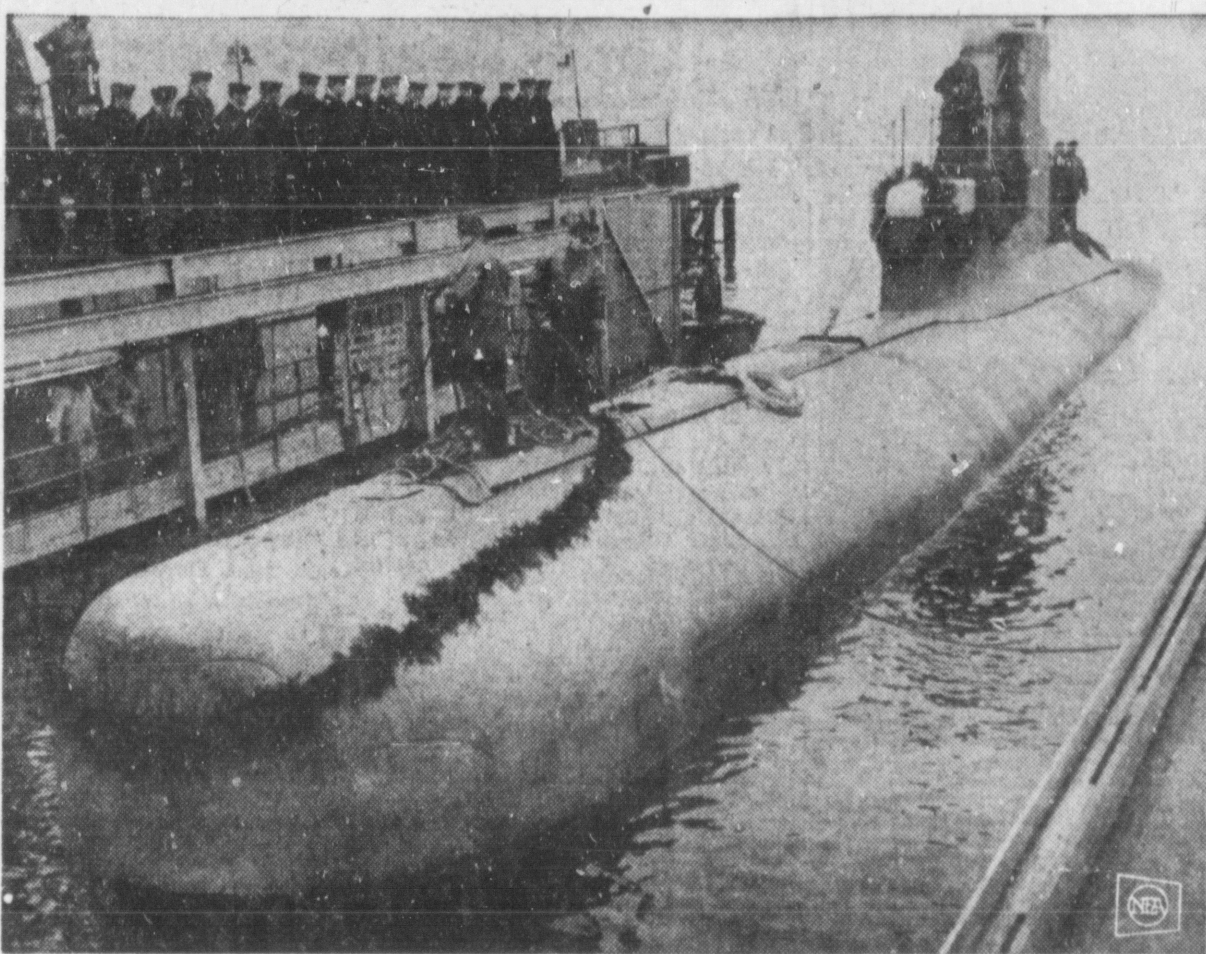

Supervisor George W. Barthel (D), Wawarsing, said petitions containing a large number of names had been drafted in Ellenville, both by the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and civilian groups.

Majority Leader Peter Williams, (R), Saugerties, joined in the request and said many veteran organizations and other groups throughout the state favored the bonus payment.

The resolution calls for notification of Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson and State Senator E. Ogden Bush of the position of the board in the matter.

Tucker Reverses

ment of "an Acting Police Justice of the village" and Judge Tucker holds that this would limit appointment to a single Acting Police Justice, rather than to more than one "as was attempted in this case." He therefore does not attempt to determine whether defendant's contention that Justice Brodsky had never filed an oath of office, is a valid cause for reversal.

The action arose over an alleged assault by defendant DePuy, on Raymond Rodriguez, on May 27, 1960. DePuy was arrested on a warrant and taken before Justice Brodsky, sitting as Acting Police Justice of the Village of Rosendale. Defendant alleged that all proceedings were held outside the corporate limits of Rosendale. Admitted to jail, on June 16, 1960, a jury trial was held and defendant was found guilty. A 10-day suspended jail sentence was imposed and a $10 fine levied and paid.

Rodriguez is allegedly related by marriage to the owners and operators of a taxi business in Rosendale. The defendant, DePuy, operates a competing taxi business.

Complainant Rodriguez alleged that while he was getting out of a taxi at the Chatelet premises in Rosendale, to assist in loading passengers or their baggage, the defendant, DePuy, struck him in the face.

Claimed Self-Defense
Defendant contended the complainant had "cocked his arm" to swing first, and that the "complainant pushed the defendant after the one and only blow was struck, and that defendant's one blow was in self-defense." No one was injured.

Following an adjournment to secure counsel, William P. Curran, appeared for DePuy and a plea of innocent was entered. The jury trial followed and the verdict of guilty to third degree assault was returned.

The judgment of conviction was appealed to County Judge Raymond J. Mino, who disqualified himself because he was district attorney at the time of trial and an assistant from his office. Assistant District Attorney James T. Murray, had appeared in the matter. Acting County Judge Francis X. Tucker then heard the appeal.

two representatives of the State Department had attended the session.

At the New Paltz meeting Tuesday closing of the creamery was protested and the Department of Agriculture and Markets was asked to investigate. Majestic said the creamery was being closed because the concern was losing money. He said however, a dividend had been paid recently.

Majestic protested the closing on the grounds the concern was attempting to move its business from New York to another state and operate in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, sending out of state milk to the New York City fluid market and ignore New York State milk. Closing of the plant would seriously affect residents of New Paltz, Rochester, Gardiner, Plattekill and other adjacent dairymen who sold milk to the New Paltz concern, it was contended.

Chairman McHugh said after he had seen State Agriculture and Markets men in Albany, two representatives had been assigned to attend the meeting in New Paltz and he had promised that the Department would look into the finances of the company.

Majestic said the plan was to close the plant in 60 days and that "this co-op was established for the benefit of the New York State dairymen and every step should be taken to see that it continues to operate as such. Milk from New York City milksheds should be bottled and consumed first before milk is brought in from other states."

Support from the town boards of Shawangunk, Gardiner and New Paltz, all directly affected, should be solicited, Majestic said. He also requested support from civic groups. Majestic said the annual business at the creamery amounted to some $750,000, a considerable financial factor in the area.

OLIVER POWERS

MRS. OLIVER POWERS

ASLEEP WHEN WORD CAME — Both Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Powers of Norton, Va., parents of just released U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers, were asleep when word was flashed about their son. "But it's not very hard to keep awake now," Powers' dad, a Norton cobbler, told newsmen.

Powers on cloak and dagger secrecy.

The White House fixed the time of the Powers-Abel swap at 8:52 a. m. Berlin time.

Government sources put together this description of the mid-burge trade and the background that led up to it:

The dark-haired Powers and the gaunt Abel were escorted simultaneously onto Glienicker Bridge, connecting Potsdam with Wamsee in the U.S. sector of Berlin.

Abel had been taken by plane from the federal penitentiary at Atlanta to New York early Wednesday. Then on Thursday he was flown from McGuire Air Force Base at Ft. Dix, N.J., to Tempelhof Airfield in Berlin, where he arrived Friday afternoon. He spent his time in a West Berlin cell.

Lawyer in Key Role
The walk to freedom on the Bridge for Powers ended weeks of Soviet-U.S. negotiations.

Edwin Guthman, a Justice Department spokesman, said James B. Donovan, a New York lawyer, played a key role in the swap.

Guthman said it began late in 1960 when Abel's wife in East Germany sent a letter to Donovan, who had been Abel's defense attorney, asking if he could get clemency for her husband.

After talks with the Justice Department he suggested she address her appeal directly to President Kennedy after he took office.

About a month or six weeks ago, when it looked like there were grounds for conferences, Donovan was authorized by the government to make the trip to East Berlin "and explore the situation." He arrived there about two weeks ago.

JFK Signs Order
When negotiations neared the point of success, the President signed a commutation order for Abel, drafted so that the commutation became effective the moment the swap actually took place.

For Powers it was his first breath of free air since his high-altitude reconnaissance plane crashed on Soviet soil.

The U2 pilot pleaded guilty to espionage charges and after a trial in Moscow was sentenced to 10 years—three in prison and seven in a prison colony.

Underway Some Time
The U2 incident broke just prior to a Big Four summit meeting in Paris in May of 1960. Soviet Premier Khrushchev, ranting at what he called an audacious act, used the episode to short-circuit the conference.

The White House said efforts to obtain Powers' freedom have been under way for some time.

Abel was sent to federal prison after his conviction of espionage in 1957.

The White House announcement at 3:19 a. m. said in part:

"The President has commuted the sentence of Rudolf Abel who has been serving a 30-year sentence in a federal prison following his conviction in 1957 on espionage charges. Mr. Abel has been deported and has been released in Berlin."

"Efforts to obtain Mr. Powers' release have been under way for some time. In recent efforts the United States government has had the cooperation and assistance of Mr. James B. Donovan, a New York attorney."

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said Powers would be on his way to this country "in a very short period of time."

Second Recent Release
This was the second release of Soviet-held U.S. fliers since President Kennedy took office.

At his first presidential news conference in January 1961, Kennedy announced the release of two imprisoned RB47 crewmen, Capt. John R. McKone of Toledo, Kan., and Capt. Freeman B. Olmstead of Elmira, N.Y.

The fliers had been held captive by the Russians for almost seven months after their reconnaissance plane was shot down over arctic waters July 1, 1960.

Government sources put together a description of the mid-burge trade of Powers for Abel and the background that led up to it.

On Bridge Together
Powers and Abel were escorted simultaneously onto Glienicker Bridge, connecting Potsdam with Wamsee in the U.S. sector of Berlin.

There was no word on just how Powers had been transported from Russia or when he arrived in East Germany.

Abel had been taken by plane from the federal penitentiary in Atlanta to New York early Wednesday. He was held overnight at Federal Detention Headquarters.

Around midday on Thursday the Soviet spy was taken to McGuire Air Force Base at Ft. Dix,

Will Never Fly Over Russia Again

MOSCOW (AP) — "I will never again fly over Soviet Russia." With those words, Francis Gary Powers left Russia's Vladimir Prison Thursday, unofficial Soviet sources said today.

I-4 Inch Snow

reported "greasy" roads and speeds were kept down, but no accidents were reported. State Police barracks in Ellenville and Highland said it was still snowing there at 8 a. m. today, but it soon stopped and skies are now sunny over the entire county.

Clear, Cold Weekend
The forecaster said it will be clear and very cold over the weekend with the mercury dropping to zero in many places tonight and remaining in the 20's during Sunday.

According to the Associated Press, one to four inches of new snow covered most of New York State today but gusty winds up to 25 miles-per-hour piled it higher in many places.

Romey said it was too early to predict Republican chances in the 1964 presidential campaign, but added, "I certainly am not prepared to conclude that Mr. Kennedy is going to have two terms."

In Syracuse, N.Y., Republican National Chairman William E. Miller predicted that Rockefeller, Nixon and Romney would win gubernatorial races this year.

Miller told newsmen that any man who captured the governorship of a populous state, especially one now controlled by Democrats, "certainly would get strong consideration as the party's presidential candidate. He said Rockefeller would win re-election in New York by a wider margin than his half million of 1958."

Can't Do It Alone
France's Communist party has drawn as many as 5-million votes in postwar elections in this nation of 60 millions, but is not itself large enough to force De Gaulle out. It declared in a statement Friday that the party was "always ready to collaborate on all grounds with all parties, movements and men who have decided to carry out the political change that is already under way."

Socialist and labor unionists, students and even actress Brigitte Bardot joined the Communists in a strike protesting alleged police savagery in controlling the riot.

This the Communists seemed to have at least partially established cooperation with the moderate left, hopefully leading toward a popular front against De Gaulle. But most observers believe it is far too soon for the Communists to cry victory. If De Gaulle is able swiftly to wind up the Algerian war—and there are indications a ceasefire may not be far off—the Communists will be short of their principal rallying call.

Four Girls Die in Fire
WOLVERHAMPTON, England (AP)—Four young Malay girls were killed today in a fire at the Brinsford Lodge Teachers' Training College at Featherstone.

N.J. He took off from there at 5:20 p. m. EST on an Air Force C118.

In Cell Until Release
After a stop in Wiesbaden, Abel and his escort landed at Tempelhof Airfield in Berlin at 3:25 p. m. Friday, Berlin time.

He was placed in a cell in West Berlin at 4:15 p. m. and evidently confined there until the time for his release.

Prior was turned over to U.S. officials at the Friedrichstrasse border point in Berlin shortly before the swap on the bridge took place.

Powers' parents were asleep in Norton, Va., their home town, when they were notified that their son had at last obtained his freedom from the Soviet prison. They were overjoyed. They were called about five minutes before the exchange was announced.

In Moscow for Trial
Powers' wife, Barbara, was told at her home in Millersville, Ga. "I'm so elated I can hardly speak," she said. She also said she hoped to see her husband by Sunday.

The elder Powers and Barbara had witnessed the pilot's trial in Moscow. Since then, they had tried to persuade authorities to do all they could to bring him back.

Diplomats Still

do about Castro's regime, the Haitians suddenly changed their minds again. What did it A U.S. spokesman was asked.

"Diplomacy," he snapped, and then added, "There was no bribe."

The Haitian regime has a reputation for expertise in the field of less-than-gentle persuasion.

Reporting from Haiti's capital, Port au Prince, the Miami Herald's Al Burt wrote last week that Duvalier's reputation for political maneuvering was spotlighted by "dangling the bait of Haiti's vote before the United States" at Punta del Este, and that this "apparently won him concessions."

An OAS commission, Burt reported, is weighing Haiti's qualifications for Alliance for Progress aid in the light of what appears to be a Duvalier demand that aid be given with no check whatever on how the money is used. U.S. aid to Haiti was cut off June 30, pending a check on Duvalier's use of the money.

Haiti had received more than $80 million in U.S. aid since 1954 before the funds were cut off in June.

Burt reported: "If the U.S. dollars don't flow, few doubt that Duvalier will take help from anyone else who offers it. The closest place to turn, of course, is next-door Cuba and its Soviet big daddy."

Hirschberg's Good Conscience Recipe for Active Longevity

By JACK DEVINE

Newburgh Evening News
Written for The Associated Press
NEWBURGH, N. Y. (AP)—Henry Hirschberg, who has been practicing law in New York State for 62 years, believes it is never too late to seek knowledge.

The vigorous lawyer, who has participated in more criminal cases than any other attorney in Orange County history, observed his 83rd birthday today.

Part of 100 Murder Trials

Only three years ago, to further his knowledge, he attended a course in criminal practice at Northwestern University. And he has been special counsel to his native city of Newburgh in recent court sessions seeking to justify its get-tough welfare program.

Hirschberg has been at the legal table — as defense counsel or prosecutor — in more than 100 murder trials.

"A defense attorney should make the jury feel that, if his client didn't shoot the man, somebody else should have," he says.

He was just as forceful as district attorney. He was elected once as an independent with Democratic endorsement and twice as a Republican.

Hirschberg's father, Michael, also served as Orange County district attorney, later was a Supreme Court Justice, and presiding justice of the Appellate Division Second Department.

Six Looks Good; Hard to Make

By OSWALD JACOBY

Take a look at the North and South hands only. You are in six no-trump and have a couple of simple ways to make your contract. One way is to break the spades 3-3. That way you have five spade tricks, four club tricks and three in hearts. The other way is to play West for the queen of diamonds. This way you make two diamonds, three spades, four clubs and three hearts.

Now look at the East-West hands also. Both simple plays will fail, but there is a double dummy way to make the hand. You win the opening heart lead in your own hand, lead a diamond and rise with dummy's king, return a diamond to let West take his ace and eventually squeeze East so that he will either have to unguard his jack of spades or throw away his queen of diamonds.

When the hand was played at the nationals in Houston, women's team champion Sally Johnson actually made this play.

She noted East's play of the jack of hearts at trick one and decided that suits were not go-

Iowa Wedding Runs Gauntlet of Little Miscues

ALGONA, Iowa (AP) — When Gwen Egel and James Kildow were married here almost everything went awry.

Both are from this area, and both are employed in Kansas City. They planned at first to be married in March, but then they decided to advance the date.

Came a wedding rehearsal last Saturday night. There was a mix-up on time, and the bridal party was about an hour late.

Date Set Monday

Monday was the wedding day. Kildow thought he had plenty of time to get a haircut, and Miss Egel planned to line up a photographer. They found all the barbershops and the photographic studio are closed on Monday. Finally a barber and photographer were rounded up and obliged on their day off.

The ceremony was to be a double-ring affair, but the Kansas City jeweler who was making the matching rings couldn't get them completed by the earlier wedding date. Miss Egel's mother lent her a family ring.

The couple went for a counseling session with the minister — and found they had a wedding permit, but no license. A check with a doctor revealed that the results of their blood tests had been lost in the mail.

Miss Egel's father drove 55 miles to Mason City to get the blood test results. On the way he was charged with failure to dim his car lights properly, and a wedding guest who also made the trip was charged with speeding.

The blood test papers finally in hand, Miss Egel and Kildow went to a court clerk at 7 p.m. for their marriage license.

Guests Assembling

Guests were assembling in the church when the minister found Miss Egel in tears in his study. She had dropped her wedding gown in the mud. She had to wash the muddy part in a sink and then iron the dress.

The ceremony finally got under way about an hour late. Halfway down the aisle Miss Egel whispered to her father, "I forgot my bouquet."

"You can't go back after it now," he replied, grimly.

The reception went off very well. But the parents of the bride said they hope their younger daughter decides to elope.

States Must Lead: Rocky

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Gov. Rockefeller says it is time for the states to lead.

In the second Godkin Lecture, Thursday night at Harvard University, the New York Republic can said the depression crisis of the 1930s tended to make people forget "that our states are designed to be our great centers for political experiment."

"As national government was hailed to be the source of great political initiative, the state governments tended to fall back into a defensive posture. They showed themselves treacherously concerned with rights, rather than boldly concerned with responsibilities."

Moisture for Plants

Keep your house plants from getting "wet feet" by placing each flower-pot on an inch or so of pebbles in a deep saucer or tray and pouring water into the saucer to the top of the pebble layer. Evaporation and capillary action of porous clay pots will give plants the moisture they need without soaking roots.

Why We Say--

LUMBER

WOODEN ARTICLES: Our word lumber is named after the people known as the Lombards. It came about from the fact that the Lombards originated the pawnbroking trade. They had rooms set aside where they held material that was to be redeemed. The rooms were called Lombard rooms and gradually, because most of the articles were wooden, wood became known as Lombard and then lumber.

THE AVITA

Economy of Construction For Ranch-Type Dwelling

By JACK McELENNEY

Economy in construction and future upkeep is an important factor to many families planning their first home. But it does not necessarily follow that a modest beginning means a sacrifice of comfort or luxury.

Associated Architects today offers its version of an economy home, a rectangular ranch design called "The Avita," that combines comfort and charm without the addition of expensive initial construction or upkeep.

Particular care in the matter of size and form helped greatly in the successful designing of this five-and-a-half room dwelling.

"The Avita" is a perfect rectangle in shape with no awkward wall breaks or setbacks. This means that every inch of the basic measurement of 24 feet by 38 feet is used to provide the utmost in living space.

The architects also offer several economy steps in actual construction which will help to hold the cost down. One of these is the use of ply-score in eight-foot panels for sidewall and roof sheathing.

The elimination of the basement is another step to be considered.

Open Planning

The interior space is well assigned with the main living area on the left side of the house and the three bedrooms on the right. Open planning does much to add charm to the main living area. The living room on the front, which has a fine window wall, opens broadly on the dining area which has been designed in combination with the kitchen.

Although the blueprints of "The Avita" do not call for a fireplace it could be a simple addition in the future on the solid left wall. Meanwhile this wall serves handsomely for attractive furniture grouping.

The division of the kitchen-dining area has been well planned. The work area forms a U on the left side, blocked from living room view by a partial partition. Space for the dining furniture is adequate and still leaves room for easy movement through the area.

Bedroom Privacy

Privacy is maintained for all three of the well-proportioned bedrooms, by the inclusion of a center hall that also serves the bathroom, located on the front between one of the bedrooms and the living room. All of the bedrooms have sliding door closets and window spaces are well planned to provide good natural light and ventilation.

There is a linen closet next to the bathroom door and another closet has been placed at the back of the basement stairway for guest or general use. Folding doors have been included here, also.

A planted area under the living room window wall adds charm to the front entrance which opens on the right side of the living room.

The living area includes 912 square feet while the cubage is 12,768 cubic feet with basement and 10,944 cubic feet without basement.

Full specifications are included with blueprints which can be obtained at a moderate cost by using the accompanying coupon.

The meeting with Adenauer in Bonn is scheduled for Feb. 24, two days after Kennedy lunches with West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt and delivers what the department called a major address at the Free University of Berlin.

Condensation Is Problem to Be Met Year-Round

Condensation is a year-round problem, not one limited to summer when warm air condenses on cold water pipes and toilet bowls.

During the winter, when walls are cold and interior air warm, condensation is going on all the time although you may not see it. At best it's annoying, at its worst it can cause decay and structural weaknesses.

Water, Water Everywhere

Warm air can hold more moisture than cold. Water vapor generally moves from warm to cold areas—that is from high to low humidity areas. When warm, moisture laden air hits something cold so that the air can no longer hold the moisture, it condenses.

In vapor form, water can pass through materials—walls, for example—that would stop it in the form of water.

The condensation shows up as beads of water on cold windows. Or you may find damp spots on walls and ceilings, frost on the underside of the roof, stained plaster, blistering and peeling paint, rust on metal fixtures.

New Danger

If you have a new house, the danger of condensation is greater than in an old. In older homes, there was little insulation and all those drafts provided a free exchange of warm and cold air. But, modern insulated homes don't allow the free passage of air and moisture condenses wherever it can.

A few common sense precautions can cut down on moisture. When you take a shower, keep the door tightly shut to keep moisture from spreading through the house, open a window afterward. Better yet, install an exhaust fan in the bathroom.

Cooking fills the air with moisture. An exhaust fan in the kitchen is an asset.

Damp Clothes

A basement full of drying clothes gives off much dampness. Cut down the activity or open a window each time. Dryers must be vented, too.

When you use exhaust fans, remember to provide a source of fresh air. Open a window slightly. Make certain that your attic has louvers and that they are large enough to keep air circulating.

Vents under eaves allow moist air to escape.

Paint Out Moisture

While you are providing all these special paths through which moist air may move, make certain that it cannot circulate elsewhere. Moist air will not pass through insulated walls to damage the paint from the underside. Paint interior surfaces with a moisture resistant material.

Fill cracks and crevices in exterior walls and around doors and windows so that walls will not be so cold. Install either a chemical or electric dehumidifier in your basement if simple ventilation does not cure the problem.

If there is a crawl space under the house, put down a ground cover of polyethylene film or some other moisture barrier.

How You Can Prepare A Homemade Stain

It is highly questionable these days whether homemade stains are better than manufactured. They may have been years ago but so many improvements have been made in such products that it is doubtful whether you can get as good results as by buying a manufactured stain.

However, if you wish to try a home-made stain, you can make a dark oak stain from 1/4 pound of

HOW TO BE WELL-DRESSED

Is fashion for the gal with the bantam budget? Or the one far from Fifth Avenue's shops? Or the one whose silhouette is short . . . plump . . . high-waisted? Yes!

The diamond-dripping, long, lean lovelies on magazine covers are fashion's "test pilots." You are the practitioner. And for you, fashion means simply a beautiful correctness . . . the best look of the time you live in.

Some people have more natural style sense than others. But all can now learn how to be well-dressed from a booklet prepared by the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, the people who make the clothes.

Four basic elements in the booklet "How to be Well-Dressed" should be considered:

(1) Simplicity. Lack of clutter . . . fussy costumes are out of date, and you must learn what to leave off as well as what to put on.

(2) Harmony. A beautiful costume is the total effect of colors, textures, lines and pleasing accessories. Your outfit's silhouette must be pleasing . . . colors should become you . . . your hairdo and hat should be good company for each other!

(3) Proportion. Modern women prefer sleek lines, functional fabrics, bright, fresh colors . . . and all must combine to make your figure look perfect. Think of your waistline as the "equator" of your silhouette. Raise the line slightly to make legs seem longer . . . lower it if you want to look slimmer through the bust. Your skirt worn shorter will make you look taller!

(4) Personal taste. When what you like and want is also beautiful and pleasing to others . . . you have taste! How can you acquire it? Read fashion articles, study fashion sketches with your own figure in mind, try on many different styles when you shop.

Very few of us are blessed with perfectly proportioned figures, so a bit of feminine deception may be necessary to give the illusion of perfection.

Tall gals can improve appearance by wearing a longer jacket, tunic or ¾-length coat, a wide belt or bold color contrast. Medium-size prints are good. And don't be afraid to wear moderately high heels . . . your morale needs the boost, even if you don't!

What to do if you are short? Chin up—look taller by "thinking tall." Vertical lines in clothing design will help you . . . high hats, spike heels and slim, short skirts. Keep belts narrow, their color matching your outfit. Single color costumes are best, with short jackets, and accessories scaled to your size. Place emphasis high, such as wearing a broad white collar, or a bright neck scarf.

Plumpness is the dilemma of most of America's would-be fashion plates. Tailored lines, dark colors, unshiny fabrics, conservative dark-ground prints are best for you. Flared skirts are more flattering than straight, and don't squeeze that waist in tight . . . it will give you bulges above and below! Forget about ruffles, thick tweeds, rounded necklines and both puff sleeves and sleevelessness.

If your neck is short, try the new collarless coats and suits. Wear earrings and an upswipe hairdo.

Chubby gals can take comfort in wearing lively "jewel" tones . . . red, blue, green or yellow . . . particularly when one of them is dramatically "your" color.

On to the opposite problem. If you are thin, perhaps congratulations are in order. You are a natural-born clothes horse! Make the most of it, in soft drapery fabrics, bright satins or spongy tweeds. Full pleated skirts, ruffles and bulky knits were all fashioned with you in mind.

Regardless of your own shape, be sure you check the "shape" of the clothes you buy . . . with an eye to workmanship. Are buttonholes well-bound? Belt should be firmly stitched, reinforced where necessary. Don't pay for skimpy seams . . . allowance should be ½" or wider! The hem should be even, and deep enough to lengthen; oddly enough, hem lines are more becoming when they curve very slightly down at the back.

Read the labels, ladies. A pointer more important than ever, in these days of synthetic fabrics. It's a good idea to save the cleaning tags from each garment you buy . . . identify tags by date and dress description. Refer to them before washing clothes or sending them to a dry cleaner.

Clothing "correctness" sometimes varies according to time of day . . . and occasion.

For example, sequins are sometimes smart . . . after five. A woman guest must wear a hat and gloves to a wedding, whether it's in a church, a home, a country garden or a municipal building. For travel, a hat or veil will keep hair neat . . . but fussy nets and flowers don't "travel well." Job-hunting calls for the ultimate in conservative good grooming . . . bright appeal combined with common-sense practicality.

More fashion tips "from A to Z" can be found in "How to be Well-Dressed," one of the three Union Label fashion program booklets. It is available without charge by writing to me at The Freeman.

We The Women

There Is Such a Thing As Single Blessedness

RUTH MILLETT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

You hear a lot about the advantages of marriage but there are times when an unmarried man is glad he doesn't have a wife and times when a single woman is glad she doesn't have a husband.

For a man some of those times are—

When he loses a nice chunk of money at poker.

When he realizes he made a fool of himself at last night's party.

When he splurges on some luxury for himself—like a new gun when he already has a rack full of guns.

When he gets a ticket for speeding.

For a lone woman the times when she momentarily doesn't mind not having a husband are—

When she decides to change the color of her hair and it turns out a little on the green side of blonde.

When she crumples a fender backing out of a parking space.

When she overdraws her bank account.

When she spends too much money on a silly hat.

When she decides to go on a liquid reducing diet.

When she gets a yen to paint the living room some off-beat color.

Of course, the times when it is more convenient to be unmarried than married don't make up for the times when not being married is a terrible disadvantage.

But that's no reason for the single not to count their blessings. There are times when they are bound to find it convenient not to have a mate to have to explain things to.

African languages frequently rely on tone to convey meaning. If an Ewe of the west coast says "do" in a low voice, he is expressing "sad." The same word in a middle tone means "sleep" and in a high voice, "say."

AN UNUSUAL NAME PROBLEM

Q: When our son was born seven years ago, we named him for his paternal grandfather and called him John Henry Jones Jr. Approximately one year ago my father (the child's grandfather) remarried and a son was born of this marriage. They named the baby John Henry Jones Jr. My father insists that my son was improperly named and that he should have been called John Henry Jones 2nd. It is my contention that inasmuch as my son was named for his paternal grandfather seven years ago, he is rightfully junior and that naming the new baby junior, after my son had already been given that name, was improper. I believe the new baby should be "second" instead of "junior." This is a most unusual situation and I hope you can clear the matter.

A: At the time your son was born when there was no thought of his grandfather's remarriage, calling your son John Henry Jones Jr. for his grandfather was entirely correct. Now, however, that grandfather has remarried and has a son, the new baby has claim to the suffix Jr. and it will avoid unending confusion if you will change the suffix of your son from Jr. to 2nd.

Q: Do names which are engraved (either on visiting cards or invitations) have to be spelled in full? That is, if a man is always called by his second name and only uses the initial of his first name, does his name have to be spelled in full in these two instances?

A: Usually the names are spelled out in full, but if the man never uses more than the initial of one, or if his names are overlong, an initial is permissible on his visiting cards and invitations.

Q: When a man is asked to join two women friends who are already lunching, must he feel obliged to pay their checks? I mean, could he be considered "cheap" if he made no attempt to do this?

A: It is not his obligation to pay their checks and can't imagine that they would consider him cheap for not doing so.

Home Extension Service News

Phyllis W. Barlow, county home demonstration agent, of Ulster County Extension Service Association, submits the following article on home activity centers:

Are you frustrated by the clutter that comes with raising a family of active youngsters? If so, you're not alone. This is the complaint of many homemakers. Some have been helped out of the dilemma by suggestions from the specialists at the New York State College of Home Economics at Cornell University.

The specialists point out that it often takes longer to get ready for an activity . . . and to clean up afterwards . . . than to perform the activity itself. What's more, most of us dislike the job of cleaning up, afterwards. Some of this extra work involved can be eliminated by the use of activity centers . . . places designed and equipped especially for a particular activity such as studying, model making, or sewing.

Cornell Extension Bulletin 34, "Home Activity Centers," tells how 18 different families made special activity centers in their homes—centers for hobbies, for sewing, playing, doing office work or writing. What's more, the bulletin contains many pictures to help readers plan their own centers.

This bulletin, "Home Activity Centers," is available on request. Send a postcard to Home Demonstration Department, 220 Wall Street, U.P.O. Box 545, Kingston, N. Y. or call FE 8-3494.

Bulletin 34 shows that sewing equipment and supplies stored conveniently in one place are a time saver as well as a joy to the sewer. A special room for sewing is the dream of many homemakers because it can be arranged for convenience and the door can be closed when sewing activities are interrupted.

If you do your sewing in a dual-purpose room, as most homemakers do, a space five feet by ten feet should be allowed for sewing activities. There needs to be a place for cutting, hand sewing, machine sewing, pressing, fitting, and storage. Try to locate the sewing machine so that it won't have to be moved in order to use it. Since pressing is done during the construction process, you will want the ironing board and iron near your machine and hand sewing area. It takes less time to get ready to sew when the ironing board can be left permanently at the sewing center. In the fitting area there should be a full-length mirror and a place to hang or lay garments. Privacy can be provided by a screen if necessary.

For storage of small items a small box or tray, or a sewing screen, is a convenient device. Plan your storage so you can pick-up easily when you're finished as well as have the items within easy reach while you are sewing.

True Lincoln's Birthday Short Story

When Tad Lincoln Joined the Chorus, He 'Stole the Show'

The crowd that went to Grover's National Theater in Washington on a night early in 1864 never forgot what happened. The place was packed; even standees were jammed against each other.

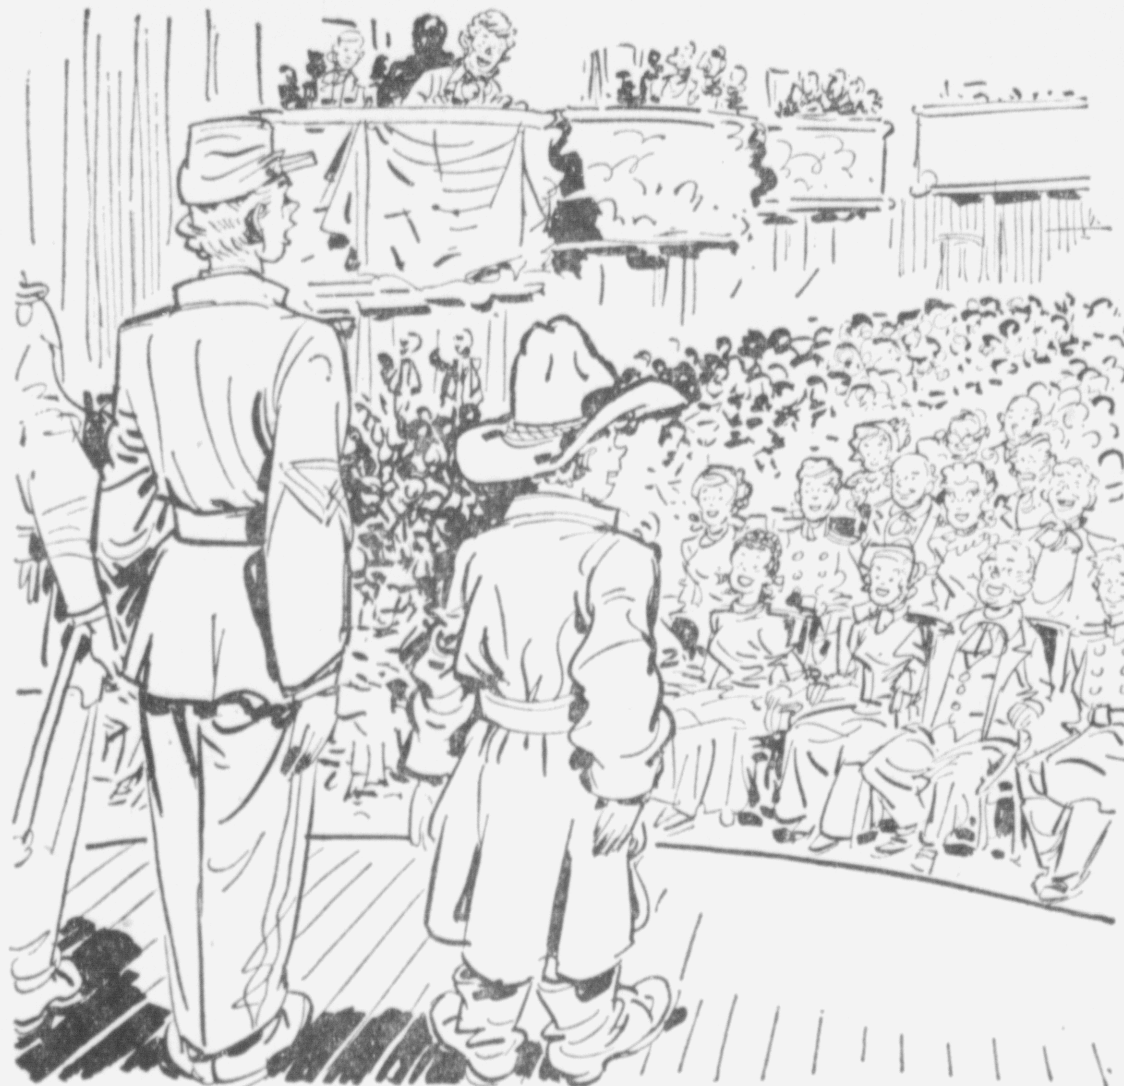

On this particular evening, one box had remained empty amid the heavy sellout. Just before the time set for the performance to begin, there was an excited buzz. People loo'd up, and there were Mr. Lincoln and his little son Tad g those seats!

The audience rose to greet them, and as it applauded, the President bowed gravely. Then the curtain went up.

As the show went on, Mr. Lincoln's face was closely observed by many in the theater. For once he seemed to have forgotten his heavy load of cares. He was evidently enjoying himself; he smiled broadly and at times he laughed aloud.

Unnoticed by his father, Tad had slipped out, and went exploring he so often did in strange places. He had the complete run of the theater, for since the President came there often with the boy, every usher and stage hand knew the youngster.

This time, managed to get behind the scenes. Roaming about, he came upon a wardrobe where all sorts of costumes were hanging. A blue Army uniform caught his eye, and he slipped it on. It didn't bother him a bit that it was many sizes too large. Then he found an Army hat that was a much better fit, and put that on his head. There were plenty of laughs when Tad then proceeded to make himself at home with the "soldier boys" of the chorus. They saw a chance to add some extra fun to the show.

Tad attracted attention at once because he was so small and his uniform was so big — You can join in on the fun Tad had by coloring this picture on Lincoln's birthday.

There was a grand finale

when the entire chorus marched onto the stage, and the star, John McDonough, sang "The Battle Cry of Freedom," with the audience joining in the last chorus.

When that time came, Tad went marching onto the stage with the rest of his friends. Standing at one end of the front row, he attracted attention at once because he was so small and his uniform was so big.

McDonough had sung the first stanza, and then, as the chorus swung into the refrain, he caught sight of the President's son.

Quickly he marched over to

Tad, and taking the silk flag he was carrying, he placed it in the boy's hands. Then, as McDonough started singing the second stanza, he led Tad out into the center of the stage, with the lad waving the banner in time with the music.

The effect brought down the house. The audience went wild.

Somebody must have spotted the President's son, for suddenly the news flashed through every row of seats: "W'y, it's Tad Lincoln!"

To nobody in the audience did the "business" on the stage seem to afford more amusement than the President. Surprised at first by the sight of Tad in the chorus, he quickly yielded to his glee over the unexpected turn of the show. He leaned far forward in his chair, with his hands on his knees, and swayed back and forth with laughter.

Then as the song ended, there were three cheers for President Lincoln and his son. Lincoln stood and bowed.

Many in the audience lingered to see the President pick up Tad for the journey back to the White House. The youngster was pretty tired and sleepy by now. But those who stood close by could have sworn that some of the deepest lines in Abraham Lincoln's face had suddenly vanished after all the fun and delight of this evening when his son had really "stolen the show."

Invention Of Typewriter Was Long, Hard Struggle

It is a fact that typed papers do raise grades in high school and colleges, mostly because typed papers are so easy to read. We might say that Christopher Latham Sholes is responsible for this situation.

One evening Sholes was working in a machine shop in Milwaukee, Wis. He was making a gadget which would number book pages serially and automatically. He told some friends there that he had read about a man who was trying to perfect a writing machine.

"Why can't you invent one that will print words as well as figures?" one friend asked. "I've thought about it a great deal, and I'm going to try it," Sholes replied.

Many men before Sholes had tried to create a practical commercial writing machine. All of these machines were as slow as using a pen. This frail-looking man of 48 years little realized how many frustrating years of his life would be spent on this invention. His first working model looked much like a mouse-trap. It made only the capital "W." His next model had piano-style keys. When it was completed, he demonstrated the machine by typing: C. LATHAM SHOLES, SEPT. 1867. There were no lower case or small letters.

Sholes realized his model needed improvement. He worked six years to perfect it. Many names were suggested for his machine, but he decided to call it the typewriter.

Neither Sholes or his friends had enough money to finance the invention. He used his second model to write letters to people, offering them a chance to share in the profits if they would lend him money. James Densmore decided to venture all the money he had. However, he considered Sholes' machine too crude to sell. Sholes soon found himself working 16 hours a day. He constructed 50 different models in all.

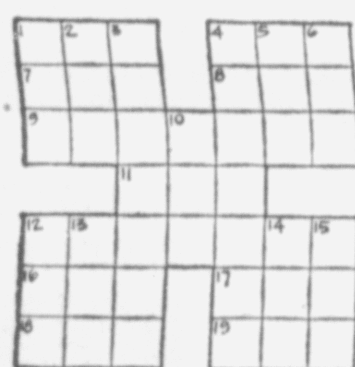

The machine shop in Milwaukee was not equipped to make typewriters. There still was not enough money to buy proper tools. Everyone became discouraged except Sholes and Densmore. Once when they failed to sell manufacturing rights to Western Union, Densmore said, "I believe in the invention from the topmost corner of my hat to the bottom-most head of the nails of my boots."

To her, a typewriter is just a lot of fun, but it wasn't so with Christopher Latham Sholes.

Gloves Were in Style Back in Cave Man Era

"Be in style. Wear gloves."

This appeared in an advertisement of a department store.

The odd part of it is that our cave man ancestors could have chiseled the same advice with sharp flint on sandstone. Scientists have found relics in caves which show that these ancient forebears wore gloves sewn with leather thongs.

Homer, Herodotus and other early-day historians referred to a hand covering with a separate sheath for each finger.

Gloves were first worn in England in the 8th Century. They were a sign of rank. They became an important part of dress after the Norman Conquest in 1066 A.D. They were necessary to the sport of falconry.

The gloves of the wealthy were rich with jewels and embroidery. Huntsmen and warriors wore gauntlets of leather sewn over metal plates.

Ladies in the 13th Century used long linen gloves for ornament. Gloves of silk or leather were generally worn by the 16th Century. Queen Elizabeth was famous for her beautifully laced, jeweled and embroidered gauntlets.

The glove in the Middle Ages had symbolic uses. It was removed before officials. It was worn in the hat as a sign of loyalty to the king. It was thrown down as a challenge and taken up in acceptance of battle. A folded glove meant that a contract had been fulfilled.

Glovemaking in the United States began in 1760 when a settlement of Scottish glove makers was established at Gloversville, N.Y. Gloves were first sold here by the dozen in 1810.

Modern gloves are made of fabrics, plain or knitted, and of leather from almost every kind of animal hide. Leather for gloves is dressed by specialized processes, cut with dies and sewn both by hand and by machine.

A-Door-Able Valentines

By Ida M. Pardue

Want to say "I a-door you" to your valentine? Or perhaps "you are a-door-able?" It's easy.

Fold a piece of construction paper 6" x 4" in half to make a folder. On the front cover, draw in the outlines of two windows, the lower panel of a door, and a doorknob, as shown. Sketch the lines with pencil, first, then go over them with a sharp, dark crayon.

"Open" the door and print one of these greetings on the inside. Use a sharp crayon or colored pencil: "You are a-DOOR-able," or "I a-DOOR you!"

The wire grate from your home oven, with the four corners supported by stones or empty cans, makes a handy campfire or picnic stove.

A spectacular preview of life in the 21st century, the fair is expected to attract more than 10 million visitors over a six-month period, to see the Five Worlds of Tomorrow. Theme of the Century 21 Exposition is "Man in Space," and some 40 nations will exhibit the best of their technical predictions. Along the boulevards colorful shops, bazaars and restaurants will sell international goods and cuisine. "Gayway," a four-acre amusement zone, will hold more than 20 exciting rides. It is the biggest amusement zone ever created for a world's fair. The first U. S. mass-transit monorail will whisk 10,000 visitors an hour from downtown Seattle to the fairgrounds, a distance of about a mile, in just 95 seconds. The majestic United States exhibit will tell the story of the tremendous recent scientific breakthroughs in the hope that it will influence young people to enter scientific fields. One of the spectaculars of the science show is a "Spacearium" which will treat visitors to the simulated thrill of rocketing through abyssal deep space at the speed of light. Canada's exhibit will highlight her efforts to harness resources in the Arctic regions. There will be a number of invitational exhibits by U. S. and foreign firms, fine arts exhibit, music, dance and drama. Ninety per cent of the buildings will remain standing.

Named Span Manager

CORNWALL, Ont. (AP) — Joseph P. Donihue of Cornwall has been appointed manager of the Cornwall - Massena International Bridge.

He has been a senior accountant, revenue, for the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority.

The bridge links Canada and the United States near Cornwall, crossing one of the key navigational points on the international seaway, which runs from Montreal to Lake Ontario.

Historic Wyoming County Span Shut Down for Winter

COWLESVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — The Cowlesville covered bridge, a 77-foot wooden span which may have been used by President Grover Cleveland during his courtship, has been closed until the end of winter except for pedestrian traffic.

The Wyoming County highway department shut down the 83-year-old bridge Friday because it had developed a slight list to the northeast, where an abutment was undermined last month, by high waters in Cayuga Creek.

Cleveland, while governor of New York and later as President, courted Frances Folsom, whose family farm was only a mile from the bridge. They were married in 1886.

Many couples have used the bridge for Sunday afternoon rides.

Named to School Board

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller has appointed Arthur B. Eddy of Abillon to the Board of Visitors of the Albion State Training School.

The appointment to the unsalaried post, announced Friday, is subject to Senate confirmation. It is for a seven-year term.

Eddy, 40, is part-owner of a printing company. He succeeds George E. Merry of Medina, whose term expired.

Weston Is Happy TV Series Over

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — There's no report on how the chimps feel about it, but to Jack Weston the end of "The Hathaways" came like a reprieve.

Weston is—or was—costar of the series, along with Peggy Cass and the Marquis family.

"I never thought I would be happy to see a TV series I was in fold," said the roly-poly comic. "But 'The Hathaways' is it. As far as I was concerned, it was a complete disaster."

The critics thought so, too. Many objected to the premise of the series, which had a suburban couple raising three chimpanzees like children.

"That was what I objected to from the start," said Weston. "There was something peculiar about Peggy and me referring to the chimps as our 'children.'"

"I pleaded to have us a show business couple with a monkey act—then our adventures with the chimps would be valid. But no. I was a real estate salesman and Peggy was a housewife and the chimps were our kids."

"After we got slugged by the critics, the production minds decided maybe Peggy could be involved in doing shows with the chimps. But I was still stuck in the real estate business. And by that time it was too late to save the show."

"I don't know," he added, "maybe we needed monkey writers."

Miller Assails

'Rejects' on Whom Kennedy Depends

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — William E. Miller, chairman of the Republican National Committee, called three former governors "political rejects" and blamed them for what he said were failures of the Democratic administration's foreign policy.

Miller, in a speech Friday night, referred to Averell Harriman of New York, Adlai Stevenson of Illinois and Chester Bowles of Connecticut.

"Even if President Kennedy wants to do a good job, and I think he does, he couldn't possibly with the people he has surrounding him in the White House," Miller said.

He spoke at a membership rally of the Onondaga County Young Republicans.

Miller said Harriman, Stevenson and Bowles were to blame for what he described as policy failures in Laos, the Congo, West Berlin and Cuba.

Earlier, Miller told newsmen he predicted that Nelson A. Rockefeller, Richard M. Nixon and George Romney, all Republicans, would be elected governor of New York, California and Michigan respectively this fall.

Clear Dorpian CD Administrator of Perjury Charges

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — The civil service administrator of Schenectady County was free today of charges that he lied to a grand jury about providing civil service applicants with answers to examination questions.

A county court jury of 12 men found Arthur Wright innocent Friday after deliberating about an hour.

He had been charged in September 1959 with two counts of first-degree perjury and two counts of second-degree perjury. The indictment alleged that he testified falsely when he denied, before the grand jury, that he had written answers on examination papers for some of the applicants.

He has continued to serve as civil service administrator since the indictment.

Commit Man Who Fatally Shot Wife, Estranged at Time

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Anthony Chmiel, accused of fatally shooting his estranged wife with a shotgun last November, has been committed to the Matteawan State Hospital for the Criminal Insane.

Chmiel, 42, who had been indicted on a charge of second-degree murder, was committed Friday by Erie County Judge Burke I. Burke.

Two court-appointed psychiatrists had reported to Burke that Chmiel is unable to understand the nature of the charge against him and unable to assist in his own defense.

Chmiel's wife, Barbara, 32, was shot Nov. 8 in the driveway of their home. He told police then that he thought the shotgun was not loaded.

Police Laxity Charged

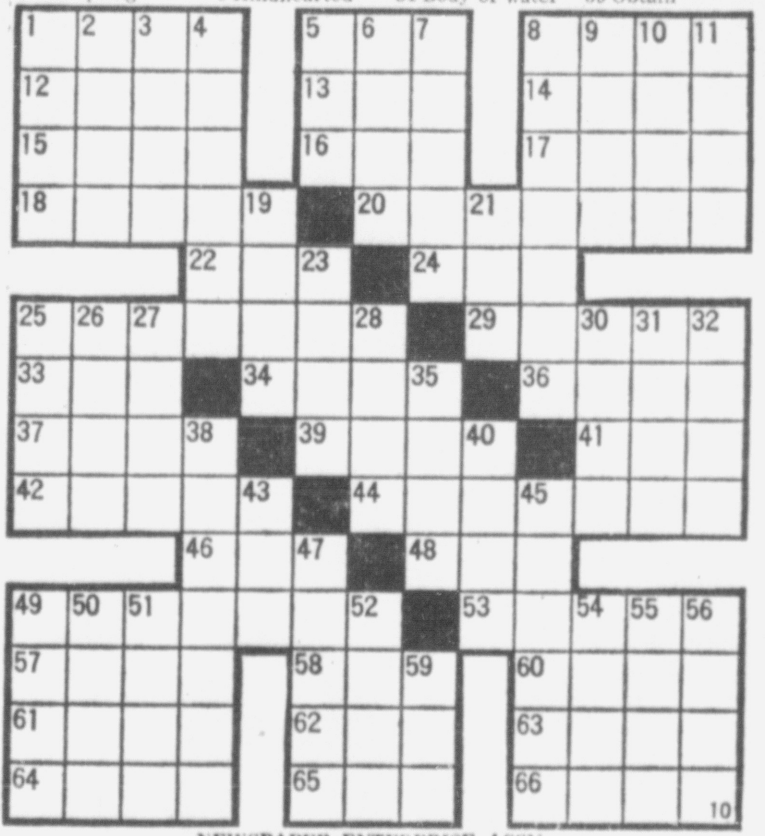

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — "Laxity of operation, such as sleeping on duty," has been charged to some members of the Niagara Falls police force in a departmental message issued by Supt. J. Milton Litchard.

Litchard sent the message Friday, reportedly after City Manager Edward J. Connel made a surprise 4 a.m. police inspection last Tuesday.

NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

Jury Deadlocked In Boy's Slaying, New Trial Sought

NORWICH, N.Y. (AP) — The prosecution indicated it would seek a new trial for Charles G. Bishop, charged with first-degree manslaughter in the shooting of a 14-year-old boy. A jury was not able to agree on a verdict Friday.

The jury was dismissed by Chenango County Judge Lynn N. Peterson after it had deliberated more than 11 hours.

Bishop fired last July at a car in which four teen-agers were riding, police said. He told police the boys had thrown stones at the tin roof of his home near Mount Upton. Bishop now lives in Norwich.

Dennis Daigle of Mount Upton, a passenger in the car, died 11 days later of wounds he suffered in the shooting.

Outdoor telephone booths in the United States now number about 158,000, twice as many as in 1956.

If all men were single there wouldn't be much reason for lodge meetings.

Do cashew nuts grow in the ground or on trees? Cashew nuts grow on an evergreen tree (Anacardium occidentale) which is a native to tropical America and which has been naturalized in many warm countries. Many people are under the impression that cashew nuts grow in the ground because they resemble peanuts in general size and shape.

A father and his small son were out walking one afternoon when the youngster asked how television pictures traveled through space.

Father—I don't know, I never knew much about electronics. A few blocks farther on, the boy asked how a gasoline engine works.

Father—To tell the truth, I never exactly understood that myself.

Small Son—Say Pop, Oh, well, never mind.

Father—Go ahead. Ask questions. How else are you going to learn?

A little girl's thank-you to an elderly aunt—Thank you for the nice birthday present. I always wanted a pin cushion, although not very much.

Professor's Little Daughter—Wasn't King John a wicked man? He used to run over people with his motor cars.

Professor—Haven't you made a mistake, Surely your teacher didn't tell you that.

Little Daughter—Oh, yes, she did. She told us he ground down the people with his taxis.

Finally the salesgirl grew impatient and asked, Salesgirl—Don't you see anything you want?

Teen-Ager—I'd rather have something for a beginner.

Locals Knocked From DUSO Race With Poor Effort

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

Hardrick Moore, Tyrone Elting and John Flowers, the basketball magicians of the Poughkeepsie High team, put on superlative performances before a hometown crowd last night as the Pioneers trounced an inept Kingston High squad, 67-42, to knock the locals out of the DUSO championship and a berth in the Section Nine tourney.

The win keeps the Pioneers a game behind Newburgh and sets up a big match between the two next Friday at the Hilly City gym. From the way Poughkeepsie played last night, the Goldbacks will be in for a tough evening.

Ahead by only two points, 28-26, at halftime, the home club scored eight points in the third period while Kingston, during that same span, couldn't throw the basketball into the ocean. In fact, the locals netted only four field goals during the entire second half—three by Mike Ferraro and the other by Pete Roberts. They should have stayed in bed.

Moore Is Great

Of the three Poughkeepsie aces, Moore put on the best show. While his teammates were having trouble with the visitors during a very close first half, Hardrick kept them in the game with his ball swiping tactics. He stole 11 (that's right) passes during the game. His hands were all over the place.

The first and second halves of the game were complete contrasts. With big John Duffner doing a workmanlike job on the backboards in the first and second periods, the locals played Poughkeepsie on even terms.

However, the floodgates opened early in the third period. Elting started the scoring with a foul shot and Moore (that name again) stole a pass and drove in for a score. Then Duke Lawrence made three successive foul shots and Dennis Lockett tallied from underneath, taking a lead pass from Flowers. This shot Poughkeepsie ahead, 36-26.

Last Effort

The losers made their last gasp effort when Paul Natale and Mike Celuch each converted two foul shots. This cut the margin to six points, 36-30, but Moore ended all doubts as to the outcome with a jump shot from well behind the foul line. After that it was simply a case of how high the victory margin would be.

Elting took charge of the backboards in the third and fourth periods. Moore did the defensive work and Flowers excited the surprisingly slim crowd with some fancy ball handling. This trio put on a solid show and the fans loved it.

The "terrible trio" had 50 points between them with Elting's 21 leading the way. Ferraro had 21 markers for the locals, exactly half their total. Aside from Duffner's all-around play, the others must have left their talents on the bus. They didn't bring them into the gym.

Dillman Scores 23 Markers in 67-65 Verdict

Bob Dillman rimmed 23 points and the New Paltz Hawks continued their winning ways with a 67-65 cliff hanger at Plattsburgh State last night.

It was the third straight win for Coach Doug Sheppard's cagers, who are at Potsdam State tonight.

The Hawks had a 37-30 half-time lead and they had to sweat through the late rally by the home side. It fell short when a last second shot, which would have sent the contest into overtime, failed to connect.

Dillman had nine buckets and five foul shots for his total. Mike Hazelton aided with 11 markers. Bob Lashway was high for Plattsburgh with 21 points.

New Paltz can reach the 500 mark with a victory tonight. The record shows seven wins and eight setbacks.

Palmer Keeps Lead In Tourney

By CARL BELL

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The field in the $35,000 Phoenix Open faced just about the toughest assignment in tournament golf today—trying to catch fast-finisher Arnold Palmer who already holds a five-stroke lead.

The defending champion went into the third round 10 under par with 64-68-132.

Art Wall Jr., running second, had to employ his best recovery shots and all his putting skill to scramble for a 70. That left him at 137.

At 139 were Bob Rosburg, Gene Littler, Johnny Pott, Don Massengale, Bob McCallister and Gardner Dickinson.

Although he needed four more shots in the second round, Palmer felt he played as well as he had in his seven-under-par performance of Thursday.

"I just didn't make any puts after hitting 17 greens in regulation," he said. His longest successful putt was six feet.

Palmer, golf's leading money winner in 1960 and No. 2 winner last year, is noted for coming from behind to win tournaments. The last time he had held such a lead at the halfway point was last year at Baton Rouge, La., where he started 65-67 and won the tournament by seven strokes.

Jack Nicklaus, playing his sixth tournament as a pro after winning the National Amateur and intercollegiate crowns last year, slipped to a two-over 73 Friday and is even par for 36 holes at 142.

Ninety pros with scores of 149 and better survived the 36-hole cut.

Cornell Holds Ivy Loop Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cornell continued to share the Ivy League basketball lead today and the Big Red had senior Bill Baugh to thank for his layup with 21 seconds remaining to play.

Baugh scored the winning basket Friday night as Cornell squeaked past Princeton, 45-43, for its sixth Ivy League win in seven games. Yale defeated Harvard, 71-66, to remain in a first-place Ivy League tie with Cornell. Cornell's victory was its 15th in 18 games since 1945.

Jerry Zachara paced the Big Red with 18 points. Pete Campbell's nine points for Princeton was enough for him to break the Tigers' individual career record of 1,292 by Hal Babesad seven years ago. Campbell's record has been broken by John Williams.

Other games Friday night involving Ivy League New York teams: Rhode Island 96, Colgate 88; Albany State 84, Suffolk of Mass. 60; St. Peter's 84, LeMoyne 71; Oneonta State 78, Roberts Wesleyan 77; New Paltz State 67, Plattsburgh State 65; Clarkson 72, Rensselaer Poly 62, and Harpur 78, Drew 57.

Ohio State Cagers Shooting For Big Ten Record Tonight

At Louisville, Bradley is 8-1 in the league, Cincinnati is 7-2 and Wichita is 6-2.

Mid-American leader Bowling Green (15-2), rated eighth in the nation, plays a conference game at Marshall.

Trojans Bow
Stanford edged past Southern Cal into second place in the Big Five Friday night, trimming the slumping Trojans, 75-56. John Windsor led Stanford with 27 points while John Rudometkin had 17 for the Trojans, whose recent setbacks dropped them out of the top ten.

Rick Kaminski and Billy Madden paced a second half rally as Yale came from 11 points back for its 77-68 Ivy League victory over Harvard. Cornell kept pace with the Eli, nipping Princeton 45-43 on a layup by Bill Baugh with 21 seconds to go.

Missouri Valley, third-ranked Cincinnati (18-2) is at Tulsa, Wichita (16-5) is at St. Louis and front-running Bradley (15-3) has a non-conference game at Louisville. Bradley is 8-1 in the league, Cincinnati is 7-2 and Wichita is 6-2.

Loss Is First For Dukes in UCAL Activity

Getting outstanding performances from Eddie Mooney, Doug Edebohls and Pete Sowa, Walkill Central moved back into the UCAL race with a stirring 55-45 decision over Marlboro last night before a full house at the Walkill gym.

The doors to the gym were closed before the jayvee contest and the partisan home fans saw their team come from behind in the third and fourth periods after a slow start.

League standings:
Team Won Lost
Marlboro 9 1
Walkill 8 1
Rondout Valley 6 2
New Paltz 3 6
Highland 2 7
Pine Bush 1 6
Ontario 1 7

The Dukes, who had a 13-game winning streak broken at Hester on Tuesday, grabbed a 16-11 first period lead and only trailed by a point, 30-29, at halftime. Then the home side came to life and won going away.

Mooney, fully recovered from his ankle injury, led the winners with 17 points, Edebohls and Sowa added 11 each. Steve Aurigemma had 12 and Jim Woodward 10 points for the losers.

Marlboro romped in the jayvee contest, 47-27.

Poem: Weather Is Weather; Whether or Not

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—"Today," said teacher Phyllis Cartwright, "we're going to write about weather."

Her seventh-grade students started writing.

One of them, Doug Hubbard, 12, decided to try a poem. When the hour was over, here's the poem he turned in:

What is the soul of weather?
You can hear it whisper in the trees.
You can see its tears falling to earth from the great, grey-blue eyes of the sky.
You can feel it teasingly peek over your shoulder on a sunny day.

The soul of weather is God.
What is the soul of weather?
Hears it Roaring

You can hear it roaring and grumbling in the deep bass voice of thunder.
You can see its eyes, gleaming and fiery, blinking in fury in a storm.

You can feel its warm, radiant and friendly smile on a sunny day.
Why do we hustle around this world?
Why do we have no time for simple pleasures?

We should listen to the soul of weather.
For the soul of weather is God.

Awarded an A
His teacher gave Doug an A on the poem, an A-minus on his mechanics; he forgot to indent a line. She took a copy to the principal of Hughes Junior High School, who passed a copy to Malcolm Epley, a columnist for the Long Beach Independent and Press-Telegram. Epley printed it.

"Doug's a celebrity all of a sudden," said his mother, Mrs. Howard Hubbard, Friday. "But he isn't particularly impressed. I don't think he has ever written a poem before—he likes mathematics and science better than English. And he's interested in sports and things like that. He's not what you'd call a bookworm."

Doug assured his mother and teacher that he didn't read the poem before. Miss Cartwright says he couldn't have had help, because he didn't know of the assignment beforehand and wrote it while she watched.

Is February Child
Doug is a blue-eyed, brown-haired boy who will be 13 Feb. 17. He is modest about his poem. "Oh, yeah, I've written a couple of other poems before this one," he said. "I just didn't bother to take 'em home. But this is the first one that anybody ever liked."

Does he really prefer science and math? "Not really," said Doug. "I like 'em all. I got four A's last semester."

Business Week in Review

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The automobile industry is barreling along the prosperity road at high speed. And, if the pace is maintained, it can sweep much of the economy along with it.

Economic well-being in the industry is contagious. It spreads directly to makers of steel, rubber, glass, fabrics and many other manufacturers.

Best Since Jan. '57

And heavy buying of cars shows that the consumers are well-heeled and that their purchases will lap over into the entire retail field.

Sales of new passenger cars in January totaled 485,962, compared with 368,900 in January 1961. The total was the best for the month since 490,000 were sold in January 1957.

General Motors grabbed 54.8 per cent of the market with sales of 266,290 cars. Ford accounted for 28.6 per cent with 138,756. Chrysler 9.7 per cent with 48,294. American Motors 5.5 per cent with 26,937 and Studebaker-Packard 1.2 per cent with 5,900.

Only Studebaker-Packard sales showed a decline from January 1961. Its production had been shut down for six weeks by a strike of the United Auto Workers Union. The strike was settled Thursday.

Outlook for Year Good

Dealers are optimistic about the outlook for the balance of the year. A survey by C.I.T. Credit Corp. at the National Automobile Dealers Association convention indicated a belief that 6.5 million cars will be sold this year.

With an inventory of nearly one million cars in dealers' hands, production during the week was shaved to an estimated 128,000 from 138,409 the previous week.

Chrysler Corp. reported it made a profit of $11.1 million in 1961. The No. 3 automaker earned $13.6 million in the final quarter, erasing a $20.5 million loss in the first three quarters. Earnings in 1960 totaled $32.2 million.

Business as a whole took heart from the decision of the United Steelworkers Union and steel producers to begin negotiations on a new contract next Wednesday. This earliest date in history was

Area Appraisers Set Dinner Meet Wednesday Night

Mid-Hudson Chapter No. 123 of the Society of Residential Appraisers will hold its regular monthly meeting at the Ship Lantern Inn, Milton, Wednesday. A social hour will be held starting at 6 p. m. with dinner following at 7 p. m.

Following dinner there will be a brief ceremony installing the following newly elected officers for the year: President - John Thoben, New Paltz; first vice president - James Gardner, Poughkeepsie; second vice president - Alvin O. Benton, Monticello; secretary - Robert D. Glanz, New Paltz; treasurer - Sidney W. Diamond, Poughkeepsie; director - Mary Bogardus, Fishkill.

The after dinner speaker will be Alvin O. Benton, who will speak on "Appraising for Condemnation" with special emphasis on riparian rights. Reservations for the meeting may be made through the secretary, Robert D. Glanz, at the New Paltz Savings Bank.

Discover Method To Decontaminate Radioactive Milk

NEW YORK (AP)—A method of removing strontium-90 and other radioactive materials from milk, if fallout intensity should make that necessary, is described in patent 3,029,161. The New York Times said today.

A Washington dispatch to the Times also reported in part: The dairy industry is free to use the patented process if milk purification should be needed. The process was devised by the Public Health Service and the Department of Agriculture with the cooperation of the Atomic Energy Commission.

The raw milk is acidified with citric or lactic acid, and treated with one of the ion exchange resins available commercially, to remove the radioactive atoms. Further treatment restores the milk to its original composition and flavor.

Internal Revenue Has 300 Job Openings

Over 300 jobs will soon be available to qualified college seniors and recent college graduates; H. D. Taylor, New York City regional commissioner of Internal Revenue, announced today.

The tax official said that those who majored in accounting, law, business administration and related fields, will be considered for the positions of Internal Revenue Agent, Special Agent, Revenue Officer, Office Auditor and other posts.

Starting salaries range from $4,345 to $5,355 per year, and successful trainees may proceed rapidly to salaries of $7,500 per year. Those positions are located in Internal Revenue Service Offices throughout New York State.

Taylor pointed out that the vacation and sick leave policies, the low cost expense-sharing insurance and health benefit programs and the retirement annuities compare favorably with those available anywhere.

Interested students and graduates should contact their college placement officer, the Internal Revenue Service at 90 Church Street, New York City or the nearest Internal Revenue district office.

Increase Scotch Whiskey Surplus To Avoid Drought

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP)—A big distillery reported today Scotland is bursting at the seams with Scotch. But nobody is worried much—the stuff never spoils, and the world's whisky-drinking population is increasing all the time.

William Birnie, head of the Inverness distilling company of Mackinlay & Birnie, said Scotland's whisky production was running 25 to 30-million gallons a year greater than the demand.

At the end of next month stocks will stand at roughly 325-million gallons, of which 36 per cent will be three or more years old.

The distillers decline to estimate when the drinking input will equal their whisky output but said they were confident they can build warehouses fast enough to hold the excess until a balance was achieved.

In Dumfriesshire the 83 ministers of the Church of Scotland were doing their best to keep the country on the whisky surplus side.

In response to an appeal from the Dumfriesshire Presbytery, the ministers dash to their writing desks and weigh in with a strong beef every time a TV actor hosts a glass of the well-known highland dew.

The ministers hope they will wear down the TV companies in the course of time. Said the Rev. James Smith of Clydebank, chairman of the presbytery: "Nearly every play shown on television features the use of alcohol on the screen and conveys the impression that a home is incomplete without a bar."

The presbytery's meeting hall is in the shadow of the world's biggest Scotch factory — Hiram Walker's, which is going right on filling up those bonded warehouses against a possible future drought.

Ribicoff Anxious For Senate Race, Associates Claim

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Close political associates say Welfare Secretary Abraham A. Ribicoff has assured them he wants to run for the Senate this year.

Several Connecticut Democratic leaders lunched with the former governor here Friday and reported later he had told them he would definitely seek the nomination.

Ribicoff, however, would not discuss with reporters his remarks to the leaders.

John M. Golden, Democratic national committeeman, host at the luncheon, said Ribicoff was willing to enter a primary, if needed, to get the nomination.

He may have to. U. S. Rep. Frank Kowalski, Connecticut's congressman-at-large, has been fighting to line up support for his own candidacy.

The seat is now held by Sen. Prescott Bush, a Republican. Bush intends to run for re-election.

Name Brian Legg Scout of Year At District Rally

Brian Legg was named Scout of the Year at Thursday night's Saugerties District Boy Scout Rally held at the Municipal Auditorium with a record breaking attendance witnessing the annual event.

Donald Fellows, who was recently chosen as the Man of the Year by the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Saugerties, also came in for special recognition, when Harry Slobodan, assistant district commissioner and master of ceremonies for the Cub Scout portion of the show, presented Fellows with a plaque in appreciation for his contributions over a number of years as committeeman for Pack 130.

Legg was announced as Scout of the Year after Commissioner Slobodan read his record of scouting which began at the age of eight as a Bobcat, advanced through Wolf, Bear, Lion and Webelos, with many arrow points for added achievements. He graduated into Boy Scouts as a tenderfoot and advanced through the ranks to Star, Life and Eagle Scout. He now holds his first palm on his Eagle award.

Among his other awards he has the Lutheran Church award, Pro Deo Et Patria, the 50-mile afoot award, the one-mile swim, Paul Bunyon, and Emergency Service Patch. From patrol leader to senior patrol leader, to junior assistant scoutmaster, he has assisted in the direction of activities for camporee and has directed Protestant Church services at Camp Tri-mount and at camporees.

Worked as a member of the staff last summer at Camp Tri-mount as assistant provisional scoutmaster. As a member of the Order of the Arrow he has earned his brotherhood and is past chapter chief of the Saugerties Chapter. He is now lodge chief of the Order of the Arrow.

Fellows, as Man of the Year, made the presentation of a miniature Scout trophy to Legg, as Scout of the Year.

Awards presented to the Cub Packs at the rally in order of finish included: Potato relay race, Packs 38, 37, 36. Orange exchange race, Packs 138, 32, 37. Duck waddle, Packs 138, 36. Window displays, Packs 138, 36, 37. Table displays, Packs 36, 138, 32.

Harry Hoffman, district representative, was master of ceremonies for the Boy Scout portion of the evening's activities. Awards in the several categories were given in order of finish. Skills of teamwork in lashing, Troops 130, 138, 31. Signaling, Troops 138, 32, 130. Four-hand carry race, Troops 138, 32, 130. Window display awards, first place, Troop 138; second place, 32. Troop floor displays, first, Troop 32; second, 31; third, 130.

Between the activities of the Cubs and Scouts, the Saugerties Chapter of the Order of the Arrow presented an authentic Indian dance.

An interesting ham radio demonstration was presented throughout the rally by Scout Glen Myers.

Kenneth Magyar, district commissioner, concluded the rally with the scoutmasters benediction. Judging for awards was by the commissioners staff. Other officials present included Russell Hardick, district chairman, and John Viet, district scoutmaster. David Bright led the boys in various cheers during the program.

Exchange Teacher Ends Local Visit

Miss Florence Sterling of Rangoon, Burma, who has been visiting the Saugerties School System since January 26 will leave February 10 for Washington, D. C.

Miss Sterling is one of a group of English teachers brought over 50 foreign countries brought to the United States by the U. S. Office of Education and Welfare.

Since her arrival in Saugerties, Miss Sterling has maintained an extremely busy schedule of class observation in both elementary and secondary school classes. She has visited several industrial plants, attended local club meetings, and has addressed several church groups. Included in her visits while here were trips to Hyde Park and to the U. S. Military Academy at West Point.

Miss Sterling has been a dinner guest in a number of Saugerties homes.

Wednesday, Feb. 7, Miss Sterling spoke to the high school pupils in assembly and in the afternoon attended a tea given in her honor by the Saugerties Teachers' Association.

SHS Students Hear Program on Dental Health

Students in the Saugerties High School general science and health classes had the opportunity to get the facts on prevention and control of dental disease from a very effective source last Wednesday. This was made possible by arrangement with the Ulster-Greene County Dental Study Club to provide a speaker from their group.

Dr. Joseph C. Erena, a Kingston dentist, discussed with the students in the individual classes, the proper habits, practices and attitudes needed to provide them with the knowledge and understanding upon which desirable dental health practices are founded.

The points covered in these talks were ones with which we are familiar — proper brushing after eating, proper diet, regular six-month check-ups with the family dentist, and the preventive value of fluoride in one form or another.

To earn this coveted award they spent eight days on a camping trip, sleeping in tents, cooking on open fires and living with a fellow trainee in good fellowship while experiencing the training necessary for leadership of Boy Scouts. In addition, they wrote a thesis on Scouting, conducted adult training sessions in the Rip Van Winkle Council.

Each received a neckerchief, neckerchief slide and beads denoting the Wood badge award.
